Wharton Is Pick of 5 Delegates

Slate Nomination In June Primary

Congressman J. Ernest Wharton (R-28th District) was the unanimous choice of delegates of the five-county district at a convention held Saturday at the Stuyvesant Hotel, for another term as the Republican candidate for the office.

The nomination will be made at the June 2 primary election in Ulster, Dutchess, Greene, Columbia and Schoharie Counties.

Stakes Claim

Dutchess County's GOP chairman, Roy C. Ketcham, Fishkill, staked a claim at the convention for the right to designate a party nominee for member of Congress, after Wharton retires. Because of its size and growing population, Ketcham said, Dutchess deserves the next candidate.

Ketcham, one of Dutchess County's delegates to the convention, offered Wharton's name in nomination for a new term. Ketcham said he hoped the incumbent congressman would remain in office "a long time." He lauded the Schoharie County legislator for his record, his analysis of legislation, and his "services to residents of the 28th district."

Wharton's nomination was seconded by Oreste Vincent of Greene County, Fabian L. Russell of Ulster County, Nelson Berninger of Columbia County, and T. Paul Kane of Schoharie.

In his acceptance remarks the Congressman said he appreciated the unanimous support he received from the Republican organizations in all the counties of the District and said he hoped he could continue to represent the people of the district as they wanted to be represented.

Delegates Named

The convention delegates designated Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, Ulster chairman, and Mrs. Myrtle Tinklepaugh, Columbia chairman, as delegates to the Republican presidential convention July 13 in San Francisco.

Chairman Ketcham of Dutchess and Neal Brandow, Greene county clerk and its Republican chairman, were named alternate delegates. Ketcham and Brandow will be on the ballot at the June primary election.

There was no discussion of a designation of a district elector to cast a ballot for the selection of President.

Assemblyman Wilson presided.

Storm Drops Nine Inches Of New Snow

A storm of near-blizzard proportions late Saturday and early Sunday dumped as much as 15 inches of snow on parts of nearby Greene County while an official accumulation of nine inches recorded in Kingston slowed vehicular traffc to a crawl and caused many cancellations.

Many churches in the county cancelled Sunday school classes, church services and Masses. Some services and Masses usually scheduled in the morning were postponed to the evening hours.

Water Content .92

Kingston City Engineers Office reported that a half-inch of snow fell Saturday night and the remainder up to nine inches accumulated before the storm subsided in the afternoon. The water content, according to the engineer's report totaled .92 inches.

Late afternoon and evening winds with gusts registered up to 30 miles per hour caused drifting and hampered snow removal crews clearing the streets and highways.

Max J. Oppenheimer, assistant superintendent of Public Works Department continued his plea to motorists to keep their cars off the streets to facilitate clean-up operations of snow removal crews today. He said the uptown business district would be cleared starting at 11 p. m. tonight.

The Associated Press reported February's first major snowfall, a storm that left more than a foot of snow on the ground figured in three accidental deaths in the state.

Some Schools Closed

Numerous schools were closed today, mainly in the Catskill Mountain area. Overnight low temperatures were generally a little above zero. Among the exceptions were Watertown's 5 below and 16 below at Schroon River, Essex County, and New York City's 22 above. The Weather Bureau said Tuesday would be warmer, under partly cloudy skies.

Central and eastern New York absorbed the brunt of the storm. Greater New York City escaped with a downpour that was mostly rain.

Others Are Attracted To Project

Locals Will Get First Opportunity

A New York City land developer said today that his firm was interested in sponsoring the Broadway East Project of the city's Urban Renewal Program.

Alexander Yosman, UR adviser, told The Freeman that he received a letter from Gideon Rutenberg, vice president of the Adson Industries Inc. of New York which said, "I would like to officially state that we are interested in becoming sponsors for redevelopment in the residential, commercial and industrial areas" of the Broadway East Project.

Others Interested

Yosman told The Freeman that Adson Industries was one of three New York City developers which indicated a "genuine interest" in recent weeks in redeveloping the Broadway East Project. He identified the others as the firms of Richard Birnbaum and Alex Danin Associates. Yosman confirmed that officials from the three firms have met with the local UR agency in recent weeks to examine the BE scale model and discuss its redevelopment potentials.

Earlier this month, the UR adviser told The Freeman that he was "encouraged" by the interest shown by "outside developers", but this was the first time they were identified by name.

Interest by 20

Meanwhile, Yosman said, between 15 and 20 others have indicated an interest in participating in the redevelopment project, including local people who have asked the agency that they not be identified.

Meanwhile, Yosman said, that while the Adson firm was the first to demonstrate its "genuine" interest in the Broadway East project by "putting it in writing," local people would have "first opportunity" to participate in the redevelopment project. He said that potential sponsors have indicated to the agency that they are willing to work with "our local people" in the redevelopment program.

Opportunity for Citizens

The potential sponsors, including the Adson firm, have shown a "willingness" to work with local interests in the capital investment program, and "we want our business people in the area to have first opportunity to participate in its sponsorship," Yosman said.

Yosman said it was expected that a developer or developers would have a plan ready this year, but that plans could not go into operation until the Broadway East project was in the execution stages. Federal approval of the BE plan was expected shortly and public hearings are anticipated in the middle of March or early April, Yosman said. Naming of a developer is subject to issuance of a financial

Suspected in Theatre Blast

Rickshaw Driver Held In Viet Nam Bombing

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Vietnamese police held a wounded rickshaw driver today as a prime suspect in the bombing of a U.S. movie theater.

Three Americans were killed and 51 Americans — including women and children — were wounded Sunday in the latest anti-American violence in Saigon. Nine Vietnamese also were injured.

One Policeman Dead

One of the dead was a military policeman who was shot while standing guard outside the theater. Another was a Marine Corps captain who was crushed under falling debris as he ran inside to warn the theater's 500 patrons.

The body of the third American was so badly mangled identification was delayed.

The U.S. command in South Viet Nam ordered security measures tightened to protect American personnel in the capital from terrorism by the Communist Viet Cong. On Feb. 9, two bombs exploded under the bleachers of a softball field near Saigon Airport, killing two U.S. enlisted men and injuring 23 other Americans.

Work of Skilled Team

Although police declined to discuss the rickshaw boy's suspected role in the bombing, the shooting and blast apparently were the work of a highly skilled terrorist team.

Witnesses saw at least two terrorists. They said one shot the military policeman at close range. Another hurried into the theater with a canvas satchel. A third man — or woman — may have been involved.

A U.S. military spokesman said the lone Vietnamese civil policeman on duty outside the theater was seen pedaling away on a bicycle shortly before the attack.

The MP was killed by a single bullet through the neck. At least three shots were heard, however, indicating the soldier may have got off some shots.

Warnings Shouted

The audience, which included U.S. servicemen, civilian officials and American dependents, was watching "The List of Adrian Messenger." Army Maj. William Koch, a patron, said most of the audience ducked under seats or rushed to the front when the Marine captain and an usher shouted warnings.

Seven Americans remained hospitalized — six servicemen and a female military employe. Five American children were treated and released. None was seriously injured.

The nine Vietnamese who were injured were outside the building.

Western Union To Install High Speed Tickers

Western Union announced today the purchase of 3,100 new 900 characters-a-minute stock quotation tickers and other plant improvements that will almost double the speed of the ticker system now serving members of the New York Stock Exchange.

The order for the new type "900" tickers calls for deliveries to begin this month, according to Joseph Vidal, local manager of Western Union. Installations in brokerage offices in Kingston and nationwide are scheduled for completion in time for service inauguration in October.

Installation of the tickers, including a new ticker repeater plant geared to handle the increased ticker speed, will represent an additional investment in the present ticker system of more than $5,000,000. As a result of the improvements, annual revenues from the system will increase from $1,600,000 to about $3,000,000.

To Increase Speed

Modernization plans for Western Union's 24,000-mile stock ticker private wire network, which will increase the speed and efficiency of stock quotations, are being carried out in cooperation with the New York Stock Exchange which leases the wire system from the telegraph company.

Present 500-speed tickers, in operation since 1930, will be replaced with the new tickers, having a top printing speed of 900-characters a minute. The new tickers will be operated at speeds varying from 500 to 900 characters a minute, depending upon the volumn of trading.

Six Tickers in Kingston

There are now about 3,800 New York Stock Exchange tickers operating in the United States and Canada, said Vidal, of which 2,700 are owned, operated

Hassel, authorities reported, left Williams' house and went to a restaurant, where town constables were notified. The wounded man was taken to Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

State Police Investigator Richard Ryan of Kingston BCI, investigated with town constables and other troopers from the Highland station.

Ruby Acquittal Motion On Test Is Ruled Out

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys for Jack Ruby opened his murder trial today with a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal and Judge Joe B. Brown promptly overruled it.

The defense attorneys, Melvin Belli and Joe Tonahill, said they based the motion on the result of a neurological examination of Ruby conducted Jan. 29-30.

Ruby is charged with murder with malice in the shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

Tonahill said that the examination showed "brain damage."

James Bowie, assistant district attorney, objected there was "no procedure" for this.

In overruling the motion for acquittal, the judge said "that is a matter for the jury to decide."

The defense also offered two motions on grounds of double jeopardy and res judicata — that is, the question already nad been adjudicated. These apparently were based on testimony introduced in a bond hearing and in a hearing on a motion to transfer the trial to another city.

Judge Brown, asked about double jeopardy motion, said, "I don't know. There is no provision for it in Texas law. Of course, they're basing all their motions on this psychiatric report."

The defense attorneys huddled closely with Ruby, leaning over him as he sat at a table in the area reserved for attorneys.

Claryville Woman Held in Shooting Of Her Husband

A 29-year-old Claryville woman was in the Ulster County jail today in lieu of $10,000 bail pending preliminary examination March 16 on a second degree murder charge in connection with the Sunday shooting of her husband in their home.

Mrs. Barbara Ann (Unnold) Bailey, of the Town of Denning, allegedly shot her husband, James Virgil Bailey, 48, a town highway worker during a heated argument.

Gunshot Fatal

Ulster County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp, Kerhonkson, who investigated the shooting with state police BCI officers, said an autopsy at the county morgue today, showed Bailey died of aspiration of blood and acute pulmonary edema resulting from a gunshot wound.

Coroner Chipp said a .32 calibre bullet, allegedly fired from a .32 caliber revolver entered Bailey's left forehead at the hairline and did not exit.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel, Town of Wawarsing, early Sunday the accused mother requested a preliminary hearing.

No Witnesses

Authorities said there were no witnesses to the shooting.

Coroner Chipp said Bailey apparently had been upset because of a toothache the day before the shooting. Authorities said Bailey and his wife reportedly argued about which one would relight a wood stove in the kitchen of their southern Ulster County home.

Mrs. Bailey, reportedly told investigators, her husband of about three years, chased her upstairs in their home during an argument and she grabbed his revolver in

Labor Holds Up Rubber Called Vital to Rocketry

PALMYRA, N.Y. (AP)—Union members have refused to allow a shipment of rubber compound, described as important to the United States rocket program, through picket lines at the strikebound Garlock Corp., a company spokesman said.

The federal government may be asked to step into the dispute today by the Rohr Corp. of California, which had ordered the compound, said a Garlock spokesman. The compound is used as insulation in rocket engines.

Members of the International Association of Machinists, Local 588, said Saturday there would be "no exception" to a union stand against shipment of goods from the plant.

A 24-hour picket line has been in effect at the plant since a strike was called Thursday by the 1,050 members of the union.

A company spokesman said wages were the issue in the strike, and that negotiations were underway between union and company officials.

Others Are Attracted To Project

Locals Will Get First Opportunity

A New York City land developer said today that his firm was interested in sponsoring the Broadway East Project of the city's Urban Renewal Program.

Alexander Yosman, UR adviser, told The Freeman that he received a letter from Gideon Rutenberg, vice president of the Adson Industries Inc. of New York which said, "I would like to officially state that we are interested in becoming sponsors for redevelopment in the residential, commercial and industrial areas" of the Broadway East Project.

Others Interested

Yosman told The Freeman that Adson Industries was one of three New York City developers which indicated a "genuine interest" in recent weeks in redeveloping the Broadway East Project. He identified the others as the firms of Richard Birnbaum and Alex Danin Associates. Yosman confirmed that officials from the three firms have met with the local UR agency in recent weeks to examine the BE scale model and discuss its redevelopment potentials.

Earlier this month, the UR adviser told The Freeman that he was "encouraged" by the interest shown by "outside developers", but this was the first time they were identified by name.

Interest by 20

Meanwhile, Yosman said, between 15 and 20 others have indicated an interest in participating in the redevelopment project, including local people who have asked the agency that they not be identified.

Meanwhile, Yosman said, that while the Adson firm was the first to demonstrate its "genuine" interest in the Broadway East project by "putting it in writing," local people would have "first opportunity" to participate in the redevelopment project. He said that potential sponsors have indicated to the agency that they are willing to work with "our local people" in the redevelopment program.

Opportunity for Citizens

The potential sponsors, including the Adson firm, have shown a "willingness" to work with local interests in the capital investment program, and "we want our business people in the area to have first opportunity to participate in its sponsorship," Yosman said.

Western Union To Install High Speed Tickers

Western Union announced today the purchase of 3,100 new 900 characters-a-minute stock quotation tickers and other plant improvements that will almost double the speed of the ticker system now serving members of the New York Stock Exchange.

The order for the new type "900" tickers calls for deliveries to begin this month, according to Joseph Vidal, local manager of Western Union. Installations in brokerage offices in Kingston and nationwide are scheduled for completion in time for service inauguration in October.

Installation of the tickers, including a new ticker repeater plant geared to handle the increased ticker speed, will represent an additional investment in the present ticker system of more than $5,000,000. As a result of the improvements, annual revenues from the system will increase from $1,600,000 to about $3,000,000.

To Increase Speed

Modernization plans for Western Union's 24,000-mile stock ticker private wire network, which will increase the speed and efficiency of stock quotations, are being carried out in cooperation with the New York Stock Exchange which leases the wire system from the telegraph company.

Claryville Woman Held in Shooting Of Her Husband

A 29-year-old Claryville woman was in the Ulster County jail today in lieu of $10,000 bail pending preliminary examination March 16 on a second degree murder charge in connection with the Sunday shooting of her husband in their home.

Mrs. Barbara Ann (Unnold) Bailey, of the Town of Denning, allegedly shot her husband, James Virgil Bailey, 48, a town highway worker during a heated argument.

Gunshot Fatal

Ulster County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp, Kerhonkson, who investigated the shooting with state police BCI officers, said an autopsy at the county morgue today, showed Bailey died of aspiration of blood and acute pulmonary edema resulting from a gunshot wound.

Coroner Chipp said a .32 calibre bullet, allegedly fired from a .32 caliber revolver entered Bailey's left forehead at the hairline and did not exit.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel, Town of Wawarsing, early Sunday the accused mother requested a preliminary hearing.

No Witnesses

Authorities said there were no witnesses to the shooting.

Coroner Chipp said Bailey apparently had been upset because of a toothache the day before the shooting. Authorities said Bailey and his wife reportedly argued about which one would relight a wood stove in the kitchen of their southern Ulster County home.

Mrs. Bailey, reportedly told investigators, her husband of about three years, chased her upstairs in their home during an argument and she grabbed his revolver in

Ruby Acquittal Motion On Test Is Ruled Out

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys for Jack Ruby opened his murder trial today with a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal and Judge Joe B. Brown promptly overruled it.

The defense attorneys, Melvin Belli and Joe Tonahill, said they based the motion on the result of a neurological examination of Ruby conducted Jan. 29-30.

Ruby is charged with murder with malice in the shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

Tonahill said that the examination showed "brain damage."

James Bowie, assistant district attorney, objected there was "no procedure" for this.

In overruling the motion for acquittal, the judge said "that is a matter for the jury to decide."

The defense also offered two motions on grounds of double jeopardy and res judicata — that is, the question already had been adjudicated. These apparently were based on testimony introduced in a bond hearing and in a hearing on a motion to transfer the trial to another city.

Judge Brown, asked about double jeopardy motion, said, "I don't know. There is no provision for it in Texas law. Of course, they're basing all their motions on this psychiatric report."

The defense attorneys huddled closely with Ruby, leaning over him as he sat at a table in the area reserved for attorneys.

Labor Holds Up Rubber Called Vital to Rocketry

PALMYRA, N.Y. (AP)—Union members have refused to allow a shipment of rubber compound, described as important to the United States rocket program, through picket lines at the strikebound Garlock Corp., a company spokesman said.

The federal government may be asked to step into the dispute today by the Rohr Corp. of California, which had ordered the compound, said a Garlock spokesman. The compound is used as insulation in rocket engines.

Members of the International Association of Machinists, Local 588, said Saturday there would be "no exception" to a union stand against shipment of goods from the plant.

A 24-hour picket line has been in effect at the plant since a strike was called Thursday by the 1,050 members of the union.

A company spokesman said wages were the issue in the strike, and that negotiations were underway between union and company officials.

Scholarship, Loan Benefits Detailed

A variety of scholarships, student loans, and other educational aids are available to New York State veterans and children of deceased or disabled veterans, according to Charles Culver, counselor, New York State Division of Veterans Affairs and John Tyler, director, Ulster County Veterans Service Agency at 4 Hurley Avenue.

"For example, Culver and Tyler explained, "New York State provides 500 regents scholarships for children of deceased or disabled veterans who qualify in competitive examinations. In addition, there is a Basic Nursing Scholarship Program, a Teaching Fellowship Program, and a Scholarship Incentive Program.

Further assistance in the form of student loans is available through the New York Higher Education Assistance Corporation. War orphans can receive up to $110 a month for higher education and a National Defense Student Loan Program provides loans up to $5,000. for full time college students. Under the Korean GI Bill vocational rehabilitation is available to Korean veterans who suffered service connected disabilities."

"These are but a few of the many assistance programs in progress to held veterans and their dependents. Almost every institution of higher learning also has a scholarship and student loan program as do many private, industrial and business organizations, Culver and Tyler concluded. A pamphlet briefly outlining these educational benefits can be obtained by writing or visiting Culver or Tyler at their office.

BushTakesActionForGreeneCountyMemorial to Art

A bill has been introduced in the State Senate by Senator E. Ogden Bush (R), 34th District, to provide for the acquisition of the Thomas Cole House, near Jefferson Heights, Catskill, and its contents and making an appropriation to the Department of Education therefor, and to amend the Education Law, in relation to the jurisdiction and control thereof.

Cole was a well-known Greene County artist and efforts are being made to preserve the house and many of his works of art.

The bill of Sen. Bush is in line with the thinking of preserving historical and cultural background for the benefit of future generations and under the present circumstances, as a memorial acquision due to the unfortunate and untimely death of Dr. Albert B. Corey, State Historian, who was so vigorously in favor of acquiring this site as an important addition to the historic sites of the State of New York.

A second bill introduced by Sen. Bush is to amend the Conservation Law in regard to detached parcels of Forest Preserve Land outside the Adirondack and Catskill Park. The purpose of this bill is to authorize the sale of detached Forest Preserve properties to municipalities that are outside the Adirondack and Catskill Parks.

Health for All

Men, Machines, and Death

From Harvard Medical School comes an interesting new look at the causes of those highway mishaps that kill 40,000 Americans each year.

In the past, "man failure" has usually been designated as the typical cause of such accidents. A mixed bag of human infirmities has been cited, including heart failure, mental blackout, faulty vision, alcohol intake, and impaired driver efficiency due to physical, mental or emotional troubles.

The discussion has been perhaps a little one-sided, since the people blamed for these various faults, having perished in the accidents, aren't in the most advantageous position to refute the charges.

Comes now a Harvard team of investigators headed by Research Associate Alfred L. Moseley, with a progress report on their five-year fact safari known as "Research on Fatal Highway Collisions." Moseley has concluded, according to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, that vehicle failure as a factor in auto fatalities occurs at a rate "many times higher than was believed."

According to the Harvard researchers, vehicle failure springs from two distinct causes: failure of the car to function safely, and faults in its design. The former is a relatively simple matter of proper inspection and repair. The latter raises more complex problems, such as whether windshields have maximum visibility, whether interior car furnishings ought to be padded, whether driver's seats are best designed to combat fatigue.

Some progress has been visible in recent years, nudged along by enlightened if tardy legislation. Seat belts are becoming universal; padded dashboards are available in some cars if you ask for them. There's still a long way to go, but with continued research and education we can hope for a healthy drop in crucial highway failures, both mechanical and human.

One year ago — The Socialist Democratic party of West Berlin, led by Mayor Willy Brandt, was victorious in an election for the city Assembly.

Auditorium Shared

NEW YORK (AP) — A church and an experimental dramatic workshop are sharing facilities in a building around the corner from the Broadway theatrical zone.

The thespic venture, called the American Place Theater, was established a year ago to help established writers in other fields test their talent at stagecraft.

Although there is no formal connection between the theater and St. Clement's Protestant Episcopal Church which uses the same auditorium, there is a link. The Rev. Sidney Lanier, the vicar, is co-director of the American Place group.

Four Teeners Killed

ELGIN, Oklahoma (AP) — Four Oklahoma teen-agers were killed Sunday in a car - train crash in the downtown section of this southern Oklahoma community.

The victims were Robert William Huitt, 17, and Willie Lee Jay Jr., 17, both of Sterling; and Myrito Schroeder, 16, and Marie Nance, 16, both of Elgin.

SHOKAN NEWS

SHOKAN — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Osberg were Sunday callers in the hub of the reservoir country. The Long Island couple have a summer place near The Vly and the Olive-Marbletown line.

Also here Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Haug and son, George. Mrs. Haug is a collector of antiques and her husband is accountant for the Onteora Central School System. George Haug has a fine collection of old coins and is a student of local history.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Deckett reportedly are moving from Coxsackie to New Paltz where Deckett has employment.

The recent rains had but little effect upon the low level of water in New York City's big reservoir near Shavertown though there was some back-up to the site of the former village of Union Grove.

Catherine Carlson of Van Steenbergh Lane has returned home from a trip to Southern California.

Birthdays Feb. 15 include that of Alva Buley Sr. of the Tonche Mountain neighborhood of Ashokan. He was born at Long Dock, Town of Shandaken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Buley but came here with his parents in early life. He married the former Catherine Kellerhouse and their children are Alva Jr. Ashokan, and Ethel, wife of Charles Lockwood of Old Hurley.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Finch and children were weekend guests at the home of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan DeHoff, Kingston.

Miles Monaco, World War II veteran and former Shokan resident who now makes his home on the west side of the reservoir, was a caller in the village center last Sunday. Also here recently was Craig Barringer of the Krumville area.

The mountain top villages of neighboring Greene County had 31.58 inches of snow and 1.27 inches of rain during January according to Irene Finch, gauge keeper of the New York City department of water supply. There was only 18.5 inches of snow last year in January.

Early Waterworks Days: Feb. 2, 1910—An item in The Freeman last night relative to the celebration of Gen. John G. Wilder's 80th birthday in Knoxville, Tenn. was of interest to a number of Olive residents who recall that the general was a native of Shokan and lived here when a young man. Isaac M. North, Rondout steamboat company executive, says he went to school here with Wilder who later went to Springfield, Ill. and raised a company of soldiers. General Wilder is remembered locally as a fine, strapping young fellow with lots of dash and progressive ideas.

Although there is no formal connection between the theater and St. Clement's Protestant Episcopal Church which uses the same auditorium, there is a link. The Rev. Sidney Lanier, the vicar, is co-director of the American Place group.

Built Great Cities

The Maya of what are now the Yucatan, Guatemala and western Honduras, built great stone cities with lofty pyramids and temples, huge monasteries, vapor baths and astronomical observatories.

Today in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

CIVIL RIGHTS: Two Republican senators say they suspect the Johnson administration has made a deal with Southern senators which involves the tax cut and civil rights bills.

"We don't know what the deal is but we are very suspicious that it's something to weaken the civil rights bill," Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said on a taped television and radio program Sunday with Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky.

Meanwhile, one of the nation's civil rights leaders, James Farmer, said on the CBS radio and television program "Face The Nation" that "extensive demonstrations" were planned in Illinois to influence Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen to change his stand against the public accommodations section of the bill.

Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said racial demonstrations would continue even if the civil rights bill is passed. "To enforce a public accommodations provision I anticipate we would have to go from restaurant to restaurant in many parts of Mississippi and Alabama," he said.

DRAFT REJECTEES: The Selective Service System starts today its program to assist potential draftees who are turned down for military service because of educational deficiencies.

Such rejectees will be referred to employment service offices of the Labor Department, where they will receive special counseling and testing and will be referred either to training programs or to jobs.

The program will be applied initially to 23-year-olds called for induction. After July 1, all 18-year-olds will be tested at the time they register for the draft.

FOREIGN AID: Latin America may receive as much U.S. economic aid this year as it did last year, but other parts of the world are scheduled for a reduction.

Figures made available Sunday by the Agency for International Development showed that the fiscal 1964 allotment for the Alliance for Progress program will be between $665.7 million and $717.7 million, depending on how proposed projects measure up to Washington's standards.

This hemisphere received $690.7 in U.S. economic assistance during the fiscal year that ended June 30.

U.S. economic aid to the near East and south Asia is expected to drop from $947.2 million to $807.5-$827.5 million; aid to the Far East is due to fall from $443.1 million to $338-$346 million; and the African program has been chopped from $261.1 million to $201.7-$208.1 million.

New farm ponds and hundreds of small lakes and reservoirs being built throughout the country are bringing opportunities for water sports to areas that never had them before.

TEEN CHIEF—Linda Evans an actress in Walt Disney films, has been named national teen-age chairman of the 1964 Easter Seal campaign, March 1-29.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 17, 1964

NATIONAL BROTHERHOOD

Ideals of liberty and freedom sustained the American colonists and the Continental Army under General George Washington through the bitter winter of Valley Forge. Freedom from slavery was the cause for which the Civil War was so bitterly fought and won. "To make the World Safe for Democracy" was the American purpose of World War I. "The Four Freedoms" were the goals of World War II.

The prizes of individual freedom and human dignity belonged to these earlier Americans because they valued them and thought them worth the effort to secure.

What of today? Have these same dreams dried up and withered on the vine?

The outward and physical struggle for freedom and equality which dominated ocratic action up through and including World War II must now be turned inward to the far more subtle and truly significant struggle of self-appraisal and self-justification.

This is the purpose of Brotherhood Week—a time of meditation and inner struggle, a time of revaluation and renewed dedication to the full meaning of freedom and equality for all.

In any such struggle a guiding faith is necessary. That faith must be the reality of the brotherhood of man expressed in all great religions and the cornerstone of our democratic heritage.

When we accept this belief, brotherhood will become our national purpose and we can then put into practice in our daily lives the dreams we have always preached.

This is the important message of Brotherhood Week, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews—a civic organization of religiously motivated people dedicated to building better human relations among all men without compromise of individual conscience. In a spirit of good will and respect for the rights of others, the NCCJ seeks to eliminate intergroup democratic action up through and including prejudices through a year-round educational program.

Grace explains that the girls have been in for bridge and, of course, they smoked. Grace didn't smoke much herself, though—only half a pack.

Yes, she knows there's another hole in the arm of the yellow chair. Yes, she knows that chairs cost money. She also knows that the accident wouldn't have happened if she and the girls didn't smoke. For two cents, so I am informed by my friends who read Russian, you can get the Soviet newspaper "Pravda" or "Izvestia" delivered to your postbox in the United States from Moscow. It would, so these same friends say, cost you seventy-five cents if you were living in Russia and hankered for the delivery of an American newspaper.

Some of the two-cent editions of "Pravda" and "Izvestia" bearing on the Panama and Guantanamo crises have just come to hand. I was curious about them, for I had read reports from Moscow that the Soviets, not wishing to throw any road blocks in the way of such mollifying events as the Disarmament talks at Geneva, were playing the U.S. troubles in Panama down. It turns out that this is pure essence of baloney.

I don't read Russian, but I can read a cartoon as well as anybody. The cartoons on the front pages of the Moscow papers are positively ghoulish. One, from "Izvestia" for January 12, depicts a tough American army officer draping a Panamanian flag over seven corpses. In the background there is a ship, presumably moving through the Canal, with a blatant dollar sign on its smokestack. The caption quotes the American military man saying, "Finally we've found some use for the Panama flag."

Another cartoon, prominently displayed in "Izvestia' for January 15, shows another U.S. soldier, ugly as sin, bestriding the Panama Canal with blood-spattered feet. He is holding aloft a parody of the American flag. The "stars" on the flag are fudged up to look like a cross-hatch of prison bars. The "stripes" carry such words as "aggression," "occupation," "robbery," "bloody suppression" and "violation of independence."

If the cartoons hardly breathe a sweet spirit of "detente" or "relaxation of tensions," the "news" stories are worse. They accuse the Yankees of "executing" Panamanian demonstrators. Alongside the stories designed to whip up emotions about Yankee "imperialism" there are editorials and news features attesting to the Soviet preference for gentility in its treatment of its own neighbors. There is a gusher about "two canals." One, the Panama Canal, is run by thugs. The other, a canal connecting the Soviet Union with Finland, is an idyllic waterway, just the place for honeymooners and such.

As for Guantanamo and Castro, there is the front page of "Izvestia" for February 8. It calls the detention of the Cuban fishermen for moving into Florida coastal waters an act of "piracy." The cartoon is a wonder. The "pirate" depicted therein would make Captain Kidd or Blackbeard cringe and cry "Mama."

Now, none of this is exactly surprising to anyone who has followed the course of events since the Bolshevik Revolution of 1918. What is surprising is that the Soviets can get away with propagating the idea in America that they have decided to be nice to us.

Moreover, it is a truly strange thing that they are willing to mail "Pravda" and "Izvestia" to America so cheaply when they are putting on that Potemkin Village show of "detente" and "relaxation of tensions."

Another bit which I culled, by way of a translator-friend, from a Moscow publication is that the U.S. pays most of the cost of the famous "hot wire." The Soviets pay the rent for the Moscow-Helsinki link in the cable, and 50 per cent of the rent for the Helsinki-London link. The U.S. pays entirely for the Washington-London span, and half of the rent for the link between London and Finland.

Measure this out on a map, and see who is most eager for the "hot wire." And then pray that the Russians won't use the wire to our disadvantage, meanwhile making us foot most of the bill.

THE WELL CHILD

Correction Needed for Excessive Eye Blinking

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Anything which seems to threaten the eyesight of a child is an understandable cause of worry to parents. Even excessive blinking of the eyes can be a source of concern.

Anyone will blink his eyes when suddenly exposed to a bright light. But if your child blinks frequently even when there is no change in light, you must seek another cause. Blinking is frequently seen in children who swim in a heavily chlorinated swimming pool.

If a child has been perspiring freely and the sweat has run down into his eyes or if he rubs his eyes and gets salt from his fingers into the corners, he will blink.

Other common causes include low grade infection (conjunctivitis or pink eye) and allergy. In some children it is just a nervous habit and this is probably the commonest cause of all. So if your child blinks, make sure that no general or local disease is causing it.

If it is a nervous habit, it is best to ignore it. Unless the child complains of discomfort in his eyes, do not use any eyewash. This only tends to prolong a habit which he may outgrow if you don't make an issue of it.

Q—My 7-month-old boy has been spitting up after his feedings since birth. He does it all through the day but he is gaining weight and is otherwise healthy. What should I do?

A—Most babies bring up mouthfuls of food in the early months of life. This may be a part of the burping that he should do after you have fed him. Or it may be that you are feeding him too much. The fact that he is gaining and is apparently well is an indication that the spitting up is nothing serious.

Q—My 12-year-old son weighs 150 pounds. He is too heavy to be comfortable or active. His hips are covered with thread-like blood vessels. What can we do about them?

A—Your son's condition is more likely due to heredity than to overweight. It is not serious and no treatment is required but an all-out effort should be made to bring his weight down.

Q—I have three children aged 6 months, 3 years and 5 years. In the last three weeks the middle child has been stammering badly. What causes his problem?

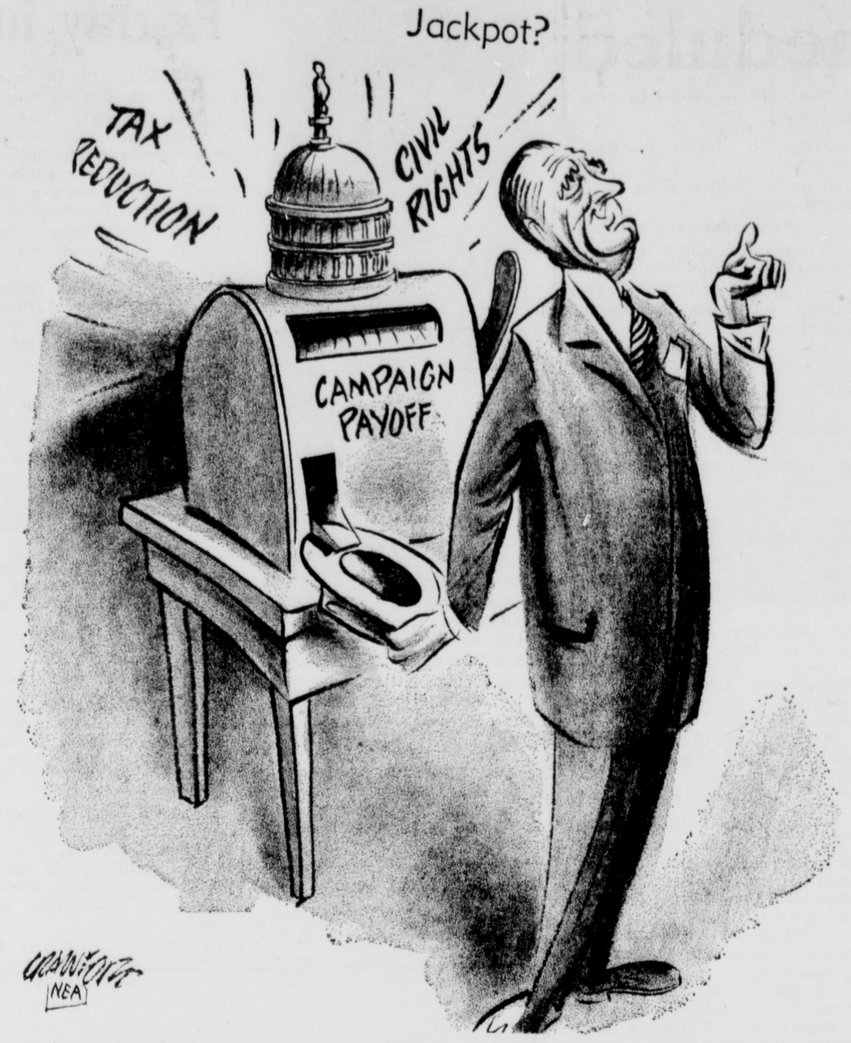
A—You can get the best guidance by writing to Dr. Wendell Johnson, world famous speech expert, at the University of Iowa, Iowa City. He has some helpful leaflets on this subject.

OLYMPICS REFORM

At one point in the classic little children's yarn about Mr. Toad of Toad Hall, McBadger remarks, "Something's got to be done about Toad!" Emphatically, this judgment applies to U. S. participation in the Olympic Games. Something's got to be done. Almost everyone agrees on that. What to do is the sticker.

Whatever we do need not make our athletes thinly disguised professionals, as is the case in some countries. There is no reason, however, why the President's Council on Physical Fitness and other groups should not sit down together and ponder ways of stimulating development of more topnotch athletes.

For one thing, the present system of passing the hat every four years to eke out enough to finance U. S. competition in the Olympics is not sensible. Other aspects of the matter also need to be studied. Now is the time to start.



Washington News

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — President Lyndon Johnson's way with the printed word is something you still can't find agreement on even after a quarter of a year in office.

There are those among his aides and friends who insist he is more a listener than a reader. Yet some who deal with him most say he prefers to see things in writing, and will plow through an incredible amount of written material.

One who puts the President in the second category nevertheless adds that he has "less idle intellectual curiosity and does less reading for its own sake" than the late John F. Kennedy.

COMMENTS OF THIS ORDER feed the notion that Johnson reads hard and long on those matters of importance which come before him — and stops right there.

This seems to be the way his mind works. Says an associate: "The moment a problem is past, all the President's brain cells zero in on the next one, with almost frightening intensity."

This stress on his being an "action reader" annoys one friend, however, who sees in it the converse idea that he is "not an intellectual."

But Johnson himself evidently has fretted at times over where he stands in the scale of things.

A MAN WHO CAN look back on nearly two decades of association with him says that when he moved from the House to the Senate 15 years ago, he wondered how — with his teacher college background — he would fit in with colleagues who regularly spouted from the classics.

"After about four months," says this man, "the President found that he was just about as classical as he needed to be."

If he is not full master of the classics, neither — obviously — is he simply a dogged reader of staff memoranda and official documents.

Aide George Reedy says Johnson has read just about every known work that has anything to do with Texas history and politics, including the lives of such Texas heroes as Sam Houston and Stephen Austin, one of the Texas republic's chief founders.

Other Johnson heroes are Andrew Jackson and Daniel Webster. He enjoys American biography and history, and devours any book he can find on current politics. In the foreign field, a favorite of his is British Writer Barbara Ward.

JOHNSON ALSO CONSUMES NEWSPAPERS in staggering volume, starting at 6:30 or so in the morning. Those who thought they would never see another fine-tooth-comb newspaper reader like Kennedy have had to think again. One of the White House staff says:

"The new President not only reads every newspaper he can get his hands on. He reads every edition!"

Johnson has already demonstrated, too, that he is at least as sensitive as was Kennedy to criticism or erroneous accounts of his activities which he finds in those papers.

A few aides think that, if anything, the President — cramming hard in his new job — reads too much heavy, official stuff. They suggest he palm some of it off on them.

They'd like nothing better than to hear that the improbable Ian Fleming, British spy story writer enjoyed by Kennedy, had been installed again at the presidential bedside as a change of pace.

Allies' Isolationism And American Foreign Policy

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Isolationism rather than internationalism seems to have emerged as the basis for national policy in Great Britain and France, as well as in some of the smaller countries of Europe.

The United States, for many years the practictioner of isolationism, now faces a crucial decision — whether to continue to pour out billions to other countries in the world, or to copy both France and Britain and give priority to the interests of the U. S. as a single power rather than as a partner.

The phrase "Western Alliance" has a hollow sound today. The United Nations moreover, as the theoretical savior of national sovereignties, is now almost bankrupt, financially as well as morally.

In the face of this situation, it would not be surprising if the American people were asked to debate in the coming Presidential campaign whether they favor letting billions of dollars of their tax money continue to flow all around the world and whether they wish to maintain standing armies in Europe indefinitely.

More than 120 Americans have been killed in Viet Nam. American Marines were suddenly ordered a few days ago to be ready, if necessary, to fight in Cyprus, but mostly to help the British out of a dilemma there.

The Chinese Communists are getting a stronger hold in Southeast Asia as well as in Africa, primarily because Great Britain, the U. S. and France do not stand together.

The biggest shock in diplomacy that the U. S. has experienced for a long time came on Wednesday after the President and the British Prime Minister had conferred for two days amid much social entertainment. They issued a carefully worded communique which implied that the two governments, while having differences of opinion, were nevertheless closely knit in friendship and partnership.

But the reporters had only had this communique in their hands a few minutes when they went to the British Embassy for a news conference at which the Prime Minister, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, announced that Britain would not only continue its transactions with Castro in Cuba for trucks and other items of trade, but would also arrange government guarantees of long-term credits for private companies in their business dealings with the Soviet Union.

This action was a humilitating experience for the American government, because, when sharp differences in policy like this happen, there is usually at least a wait of a few days until the visiting dignitary gets home and announces his policies, presumably after consultation with his associates.

The impression here, however, is that the British government had made up its mind beforehand to ignore American protests about trading with Cuba and had decided to go ahead with its recovery in the Soviet Union. In fact, negotiations for a $266-million deal were going on in London between British firms and Soviet emissaries while President Johnson and Sir Alec Douglas-Home were meeting in Washington. The British are planning to build chemical plants in Russia which could indirectly be helpful to a war economy. Another $280-million deal to erect more factories in Russia now is under discussion in London.

The Prime Minister perceived that there was opposition in the U. S. to the British policy, and while in Washington explained that the British believe that "comfortable" Communists are less dangerous than hungry ones. After several days of polite and perfunctory statements, Secretary of State Rusk finally said in a statement broadcast overseas by the "Voice of America":

"I think the principal problem we see in that (the Prime Minister's statement) is that we cannot guarantee that the Communists will use the resources that are available to them to make themselves comfortable and fat. They may keep themselves lean and use the resources available to them for armaments and for the support of subversive activities in other countries and for pursuing the objectives of the world revolution."

Secretary Rusk hinted that the American people might decide to boycott some of the British firms which sell goods here if those same firms continue to help the Soviet Union.

Concurrently, the leaders of the maritime unions of the AFL-CIO denounced the sale of American wheat to Russia and called on President Johnson to halt what they termed a "dangerous program." The AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department adopted a resolution urging the 29 unions to obey an order to refuse to load wheat on ships destined for the Soviet Union.

The deal by which the U.S. sold wheat to the Soviets was unmoral on its face, but it was supposed to offer an economic benefit to our farm states. The British and French were quick to take advantage of the readiness of the U. S. to sell wheat to the Soviet Union. They, along with Spain, Italy, Belgium and Sweden, are shipping goods to Cuba.

It's everybody for himself. Certainly the time is at hand for an "agonizing reappraisal" of foreign policy as a whole by the American people.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

It is possible that I might fairly be classified as deficient, slow, or even stupid on almost any subject in the world excpt budgets. There is much applause in fiscal circles over President Johnson's reduced budget, but budgetcutting in his league is merely a matter of lopping the toes and scalp off the body politic.

America is going to walk a little funny, that's all. For years, I have prided myself on living beyond my means. All it requires is a mathematical mind and courage. You take your $100 a week income, and add everything up until it comes out an even $110. I used to be so deep in debt that when anyone uttered the word "hock," I automatically sprang to attention and said: "Present."

The managers of the loan companies all called me by my first name. Sometimes, when I was late with a payment, the reminder letter opend with the salutation "Dear, dear, naughty Jim . . ." And yet, when I tell you that we lived "top drawer", I mean the place where the jewelry is kept.

In my house, I was always in charge of the budget. If my wife had to keep it, on what I earned, she would have had a nervous breakdown. So I made out the items — rent, gas, electricity, phone, fuel oil, insurance, bus fare, lunch money, drinking money, laundry, groceries, gasoline—and she sat watching and laughing like a maniac.

The good part about Mrs. B. was that she made out checks and paid the bills promptly. She never bothered to mark these little peccadillos on the stubs, nor to study the balance, if any. The result was that sometimes both the merchant and the Bishops were surprised. The bank too. There was a butcher named Finn on Cedar Lane. He was the only truly Irish butcher I knew. At one time, when no one was buying anything that I wrote, I owed him $300. One day I passed him on the street—or almost passed him—and he muttered under his breath: "Stop worrying about it. No use both of us staying awake nights." It was—well, touching.

All of them were paid off. All they had to do was live long enough. Some of them looked a little grayer when they stamped "Paid in full" on the tab, but these were the worriers. It is impossible to live beyond your means comfortably if you are going to fret. The trick is to do it with aplomb, savoir faire, and some brass.

The one rule I made for myself was never to pawn anything. This is a form of weaseling. The first thing that goes into the hock shop are her earrings, and it ends with the pawning of wedding rings and innocent children. We had none of that. The Bishops always had the finest food, the best rugs and drapes, and the greatest assortment of mail on the first of the month of anyone in our neighborhood.

We always had a case of beer on hand too. When the stuff ran out, we used to send my poor old mother-in-law Maggy upstairs to her room to sort the pennies from the buttons in her bureau. If she came down with a dollar and a half, we were good for another fifth of gin. I told her that the pennies would never help her kidney stones, but the gin would.

One time I was driving a big Cadillac, and thinking of how I owed $3,100, not counting the house. When I arrived at my office I found that a book of mine had been selected by the Book of the Month Club. In a trice, I was uncomfortable and out of hock. I phoned Mrs. B. She did not burst into applause. All she said was: "Don't you think we ought to pay the Book of the Month Club the $9.80 we owe them?"

Those were good days. I never knock them. There was a perpetual excitement which is lacking in families which earn, say, $100, and live on a $90 budget. In our house, when you asked a guest to sit, you were never certain whether he was going to dump himself in the chair, or repossess it. In either case, he was more than welcome.

My wife had a mink coat when I was still putting cardboard in my shoes. I used to bring little gifts home for Maggy—earrings, watches, etc.—and, with her poor eyesight she couldn't see them and with my poor pocketbook I couldn't pay for them. But she always smiled fondly through her contempt and murmured: "Now ain't that odd?"

The personal loan companies used to seduce me with the line: "Why owe so many companies? We'll pay the others off, and you'll owe only one debt." I was aware of this 'con' talk, but I went along with it anyway. I would put all the debts into one pile, pay everybody off, and, within 30 days, assume a well-fed air and go around to the old loan companies negotiating new debts.

This is all behind me. I am solvent and sober, worse luck. . .

NATIONAL BROTHERHOOD

Ideals of liberty and freedom sustained the American colonists and the Continental Army under General George Washington through the bitter winter of Valley Forge. Freedom from slavery was the cause for which the Civil War was so bitterly fought and won. "To make the World Safe for Democracy" was the American purpose of World War I. "The Four Freedoms" were the goals of World War II.

The prizes of individual freedom and human dignity belonged to these earlier Americans because they valued them and thought them worth the effort to secure.

What of today? Have these same dreams dried up and withered on the vine?

The outward and physical struggle for freedom and equality which dominated ocratic action up through and including World War II must now be turned inward to the far more subtle and truly significant struggle of self-appraisal and self-justification.

This is the purpose of Brotherhood Week —a time of meditation and inner struggle, a time of revaluation and renewed dedication to the full meaning of freedom and equality for all.

In any such struggle a guiding faith is necessary. That faith must be the reality of the brotherhood of man expressed in all great religions and the cornerstone of our democratic heritage.

When we accept this belief, brotherhood will become our national purpose and we can then put into practice in our daily lives the dreams we have always preached.

This is the important message of Brotherhood Week, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews—a civic organization of religiously motivated people dedicated to building better human relations among all men without compromise of individual conscience. In a spirit of good will and respect for the rights of others, the NCCJ seeks to eliminate intergroup democratic action up through and including prejudices through a year-round educational program.

Whatever we do need not make our athletes thinly disguised professionals, as is the case in some countries. There is no reason, however, why the President's Council on Physical Fitness and other groups should not sit down together and ponder ways of stimulating development of more topnotch athletes.

For one thing, the present system of passing the hat every four years to eke out enough to finance U. S. competition in the Olympics is not sensible. Other aspects of the matter also need to be studied. Now is the time to start.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — President Lyndon Johnson's way with the printed word is something you still can't find agreement on even after a quarter of a year in office.

There are those among his aides and friends who insist he is more a listener than a reader. Yet some who deal with him most say he prefers to see things in writing, and will plow through an incredible amount of written material.

One who puts the President in the second category nevertheless adds that he has "less idle intellectual curiosity and does less reading for its own sake" than the late John F. Kennedy.

COMMENTS OF THIS ORDER feed the notion that Johnson reads hard and long on those matters of importance which come before him — and stops right there.

This seems to be the way his mind works. Says an associate: "The moment a problem is past, all the President's brain cells zero in on the next one, with almost frightening intensity."

This stress on his being an "action reader" annoys one friend, however, who sees in it the converse idea that he is "not an intellectual."

But Johnson himself evidently has fretted at times over where he stands in the scale of things.

A MAN WHO CAN look back on nearly two decades of association with him says that when he moved from the House to the Senate 15 years ago, he wondered how — with his teacher college background — he would fit in with colleagues who regularly spouted from the classics.

"After about four months," says this man, "the President found that he was just about as classical as he needed to be."

If he is not full master of the classics, neither — obviously — is he simply a dogged reader of staff memoranda and official documents.

Aide George Reedy says Johnson has read just about every known work that has anything to do with Texas history and politics, including the lives of such Texas heroes as Sam Houston and Stephen Austin, one of the Texas republic's chief founders.

Other Johnson heroes are Andrew Jackson and Daniel Webster. He enjoys American biography and history, and devours any book he can find on current politics. In the foreign field, a favorite of his is British Writer Barbara Ward.

JOHNSON ALSO CONSUMES NEWSPAPERS in staggering volume, starting at 6:30 or so in the morning. Those who thought they would never see another fine-tooth-comb newspaper reader like Kennedy have had to think again. One of the White House staff says:

"The new President not only reads every newspaper he can get his hands on. He reads every edition!"

Johnson has already demonstrated, too, that he is at least as sensitive as was Kennedy to criticism or erroneous accounts of his activities which he finds in those papers.

A few aides think that, if anything, the President — cramming hard in his new job — reads too much heavy, official stuff. They suggest he palm some of it off on them.

They'd like nothing better than to hear that the improbable Ian Fleming, British spy story writer enjoyed by Kennedy, had been installed again at the presidential bedside as a change of pace.

Allies' Isolationism And American Foreign Policy

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Isolationism rather than internationalism seems to have emerged as the basis for national policy in Great Britain and France, as well as in some of the smaller countries of Europe.

The United States, for many years the practictioner of isolationism, now faces a crucial decision — whether to continue to pour out billions to other countries in the world, or to copy both France and Britain and give priority to the interests of the U. S. as a single power rather than as a partner.

The phrase "Western Alliance" has a hollow sound today. The United Nations moreover, as the theoretical savior of national sovereignties, is now almost bankrupt, financially as well as morally.

In the face of this situation, it would not be surprising if the American people were asked to debate in the coming Presidential campaign whether they favor letting billions of dollars of their tax money continue to flow all around the world and whether they wish to maintain standing armies in Europe indefinitely.

More than 120 Americans have been killed in Viet Nam. American Marines were suddenly ordered a few days ago to be ready, if necessary, to fight in Cyprus, but mostly to help the British out of a dilemma there.

The Chinese Communists are getting a stronger hold in Southeast Asia as well as in Africa, primarily because Great Britain, the U. S. and France do not stand together.

The biggest shock in diplomacy that the U. S. has experienced for a long time came on Wednesday after the President and the British Prime Minister had conferred for two days amid much social entertainment. They issued a carefully worded communique which implied that the two governments, while having differences of opinion, were nevertheless closely knit in friendship and partnership.

But the reporters had only had this communique in their hands a few minutes when they went to the British Embassy for a news conference at which the Prime Minister, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, announced that Britain would not only continue its transactions with Castro in Cuba for trucks and other items of trade, but would also arrange government guarantees of long-term credits for private companies in their business dealings with the Soviet Union.

This action was a humilitating experience for the American government, because, when sharp differences in policy like this happen, there is usually at least a wait of a few days until the visiting dignitary gets home and announces his policies, presumably after consultation with his associates.

The impression here, however, is that the British government had made up its mind beforehand to ignore American protests about trading with Cuba and had decided to go ahead with its recovery in the Soviet Union. In fact, negotiations for a $266-million deal were going on in London between British firms and Soviet emissaries while President Johnson and Sir Alec Douglas-Home were meeting in Washington. The British are planning to build chemical plants in Russia which could indirectly be helpful to a war economy. Another $280-million deal to erect more factories in Russia now is under discussion in London.

The Prime Minister perceived that there was opposition in the U. S. to the British policy, and while in Washington explained that the British believe that "comfortable" Communists are less dangerous than hungry ones. After several days of polite and perfunctory statements, Secretary of State Rusk finally said in a statement broadcast overseas by the "Voice of America":

"I think the principal problem we see in that (the Prime Minister's statement) is that we cannot guarantee that the Communists will use the resources that are available to them to make themselves comfortable and fat. They may keep themselves lean and use the resources available to them for armaments and for the support of subversive activities in other countries and for pursuing the objectives of the world revolution."

Secretary Rusk hinted that the American people might decide to boycott some of the British firms which sell goods here if those same firms continue to help the Soviet Union.

Concurrently, the leaders of the maritime unions of the AFL-CIO denounced the sale of American wheat to Russia and called on President Johnson to halt what they termed a "dangerous program." The AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department adopted a resolution urging the 29 unions to obey an order to refuse to load wheat on ships destined for the Soviet Union.

The deal by which the U.S. sold wheat to the Soviets was unmoral on its face, but it was supposed to offer an economic benefit to our farm states. The British and French were quick to take advantage of the readiness of the U. S. to sell wheat to the Soviet Union. They, along with Spain, Italy, Belgium and Sweden, are shipping goods to Cuba.

It's everybody for himself. Certainly the time is at hand for an "agonizing reappraisal" of foreign policy as a whole by the American people.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

It is possible that I might fairly be classified as deficient, slow, or even stupid on almost any subject in the world except budgets. There is much applause in fiscal circles over President Johnson's reduced budget, but budgetcutting in his league is merely a matter of lopping the toes and scalp off the body politic.

America is going to walk a little funny, that's all. For years, I have prided myself on living beyond my means. All it requires is a mathematical mind and courage. You take your $100 a week income, and add everything up until it comes out an even $110. I used to be so deep in debt that when anyone uttered the word "hock," I automatically sprang to attention and said: "Present."

The managers of the loan companies all called me by my first name. Sometimes, when I was late with a payment, the reminder letter opend with the salutation "Dear, dear, naughty Jim . . ." And yet, when I tell you that we lived "top drawer", I mean the place where the jewelry is kept.

In my house, I was always in charge of the budget. If my wife had to keep it, on what I earned, she would have had a nervous breakdown. So I made out the items — rent, gas, electricity, phone, fuel oil, insurance, bus fare, lunch money, drinking money, laundry, groceries, gasoline—and she sat watching and laughing like a maniac.

The good part about Mrs. B. was that she made out checks and paid the bills promptly. She never bothered to mark these little peccadillos on the stubs, nor to study the balance, if any. The result was that sometimes both the merchant and the Bishops were surprised. The bank too. There was a butcher named Finn on Cedar Lane. He was the only truly Irish butcher I knew. At one time, when no one was buying anything that I wrote, I owed him $300. One day I passed him on the street—or almost passed him—and he muttered under his breath: "Stop worrying about it. No use both of us staying awake nights." It was—well, touching.

All of them were paid off. All they had to do was live long enough. Some of them looked a little grayer when they stamped "Paid in full" on the tab, but these were the worriers. It is impossible to live beyond your means comfortably if you are going to fret. The trick is to do it with aplomb, savoir faire, and some brass.

The one rule I made for myself was never to pawn anything. This is a form of weaseling. The first thing that goes into the hock shop are her earrings, and it ends with the pawning of wedding rings and innocent children. We had none of that. The Bishops always had the finest food, the best rugs and drapes, and the greatest assortment of mail on the first of the month of anyone in our neighborhood.

We always had a case of beer on hand too. When the stuff ran out, we used to send my poor old mother-in-law Maggy upstairs to her room to sort the pennies from the buttons in her bureau. If she came down with a dollar and a half, we were good for another fifth of gin. I told her that the pennies would never help her kidney stones, but the gin would.

One time I was driving a big Cadillac, and thinking of how I owed $3,100, not counting the house. When I arrived at my office I found that a book of mine had been selected by the Book of the Month Club. In a trice, I was uncomfortable and out of hock. I phoned Mrs. B. She did not burst into applause. All she said was: "Don't you think we ought to pay the Book of the Month Club the $9.80 we owe them?"

Those were good days. I never knock them. There was a perpetual excitement which is lacking in families which earn, say, $100, and live on a $90 budget. In our house, when you asked a guest to sit, you were never certain whether he was going to dump himself in the chair, or repossess it. In either case, he was more than welcome.

My wife had a mink coat when I was still putting cardboard in my shoes. I used to bring little gifts home for Maggy—earrings, watches, etc.—and, with her poor eyesight she couldn't see them and with my poor pocketbook I couldn't pay for them. But she always smiled fondly through her contempt and murmured: "Now ain't that odd?"

The personal loan companies used to seduce me with the line: "Why owe so many companies? We'll pay the others off, and you'll owe only one debt." I was aware of this 'con' talk, but I went along with it anyway. I would put all the debts into one pile, pay everybody off, and, within 30 days, assume a well-fed air and go around to the old loan companies negotiating new debts.

This is all behind me. I am solvent and sober, worse luck. . .

Red Assassins' Terrorism Multiplies in Viet Nam

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American-backed war against Communists in South Viet Nam is not only dragging badly but Red assassins are trying to terrorize Americans, including women and children, far behind the lines.

This is building to an anguished dilemma for President Johnson in this election year when he wants to look good in foreign affairs, the field in which would-be Republican presidential candidates criticize him most.

In Saigon, the capital, assassins' bombs have killed and wounded Americans in bars and a baseball stadium. American homes have been attacked with grenades. Sunday night the terrorists reached a peak.

Outside a movie theater filled with about 500 servicemen and their families, a U.S. military policeman was shot to death. Then came the bomb blast.

Two more servicemen were killed, 51 Americans were wounded or injured, including women and children, and outside the theater a number of Vietnamese were killed or wounded.

Ferolcty Multiplying

An Associated Press dispatch says recent Vietnamese intelligence reports indicate top level Communist terrorist and assassination squads from North Viet Nam started moving into Saigon Jan. 1. The attacks didn't get going well until this month. Now they are multiplying in ferocity.

Ever since a bunch of South Vietnamese generals took over the government in a coup last Nov. 1, the course of the war has been uncertain and dilapidated.

This developing chaos was compounded Jan. 29 when the generals who pulled off the Nov. 1 coup were bounced out in another coup by another bunch of generals, led by Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, 36.

Withdrawal Would Hurt

A "dirty, untidy, disagreeable war," Secretary of State Dean Rusk has called it, although Johnson has said "we're not pulling out."

Such a withdrawal would wreck American prestige in Southeast Asia where over many years now this country has spent American lives and billions in dollars to save the area from communism.

The American part in this war is a kind of myth. The United States is not supposed to be directly involved, because that might mean a war with Red China, which this country, after Korea, doesn't want.

In the past three years about 185 Americans have been killed in Viet Nam—mostly in the fighting area but some in Saigon—and about 600 have been wounded or injured. In addition, this country has put over $5 billion in aid into South Viet Nam.

Reds Take Advantage

No wonder the Communists—knowing this country's reluctance to get directly involved, since it might mean war with China—have taken advantage of the mounting uncertainties.

Their purpose seems obvious enough: To embarrass Americans throughout Asia; to weaken the will of the South Vietnamese to resist by shaking their confidence in Americans and their own government; and to create dissension in the United States over what to do.

Sooner or later Johnson must make a tremendous decision: To stay and just dawdle along while American men and money are lost; to take more direct action, despite the risks; or to get out.

Justice Court Called Basis of American Way

Speaking before the Ulster County Magistrates Association Saturday night at their installation dinner at S.R.S. Restaurant in Cottekill, Harry M. Thayer, president of radio station WGHQ, took a strong position against abolishing the local justices of the peace court and substituting a central district court.

Justice of the Peace Warren McDowell, town of Gardiner, presided as toastmaster and introduced the speaker as well as the newly elected officers who took over their duties at the meeting.

Samuel Stokes, town of Gardiner was installed as president of the Association, succeeding Justice of the Peace Robert Ferrigan of Town of Kingston, who was unable to be present due to illness of his daughter. The past president's gavel was accepted by Justice of the Peace Rudolph C. Baumgarten of Town of Woodstock on behalf of Ferrigan.

Other Officers

Other officers installed are: Justice Warren McDowell, Gardiner, vice president; Justice Edmund Bower, Hurley, secretary; Justice Vincent J. Porcelli, Plattekill, treasurer. Trustees are Robert Ferrigan, town of Kingston; John O. Beaver, town of Esopus; Edward Brodsky, Town of Rosendale; Amiel E. Bess, Town of Shandaken and Raymond Lawrence, Town of Rochester.

There were seventy-three members and guests present at the dinner.

Would Hurt Freedom

In his talk on the much discussed abolishing of the local justice's court, Thayer said this move would take away authority from local areas, centralize additional power, give political leaders an opportunity to handpick judges. He also pointed out that it would be necessary to have assistant judges at considerable extra cost to sit in at various places and the move would destroy local authority. Thayer said the justice's court as it now exists was "the foundation of our way of life.

Thayer told the magistrates that the scales of justice were "balanced 90 percent for the criminal" and said every protection was thrown about the law violator or the wrong-doer. He called upon the Association to investigate and, said the Ulster County Bar Association and the Grand Jurors Association should recommend changes in the Penal Code to "give society a greater break."

During his talk he took issue with the jury system and also the manner in which jurors are treated after being summoned. Lateness in getting sessions of court started because the Court does not make its appearance promptly at the adjourned hour he said was delaying justice.

He also cited the present $5 a day paid jurors and said that no change in the jury payment plan has been made since 1932.

Dutchess county he noted pays $8 a day. He advocated raising the jury pay to correspond with the minimum hourly wage law with no less than five hours allowed for any day, even though jurors responded and were sent home immediately because of no case being ready.

Qualification of jurors was also touched upon. A case was cited where a juror had not heard much of the testimony due to poor hearing ability and inquired of a second juror with whom she was riding "what a witness had said."

Thayer advocated any self-employed person who gives up time to serve as a juror be paid a basic $? an hour for service.

A night session of both Supreme and County Court was also advocated and he also cited the growing number of criminal cases on the court calendar.

Mrs. Cummings Is Critical, Injured In Traffic Mishap

A woman injured in a Taylor Street mishap early today is in critical condition at Kingston Hospital.

Three others were injured in city accidents over the weekend.

Mrs. Nanette Cummings, 39, of 207 Hurley Avenue, police said, suffered stomach injuries, bruises and contusions, when her sedan collided with a county highway department truck on Taylor Street this morning. She was taken to the hospital in a Doctor's ambulance.

Police said the sedan was headed north on Taylor Street, and the highway department vehicle, operated by Gustav Granlund, 52, of West Hurley, headed south, "was stopped at the time of impact." The car struck a front wheel. Officers Louis Sapp and Joseph Kivlan investigated.

Terwilliger Fair

William Terwilliger, 21, of 426 Washington Avenue, injured in a car-bicycle mishap early Saturday night, was reported in fair condition today at the Benedictine Hospital. He suffered an injured left hand.

Police said Terwilliger reported having a "dizzy spell" as he rode his bicycle west on Hurley Avenue. It collided with the car of Michael T. Roe, of Box 322, Hurley, which was parked near 107 Hurley Avenue. Terwilliger, the report said, was taken to the hospital by his father. Officer James Scott investigated.

The car, driven by Peter D. Showers, 24, of Colonial Gardens, the report said, was turning left from Grand into Prince Street. Officers Otto Short and Kenneth Radel investigated.

ROBERT HOGAN JR.

Kingston Coal Vice President

Herbert L. Shultz, president of Kingston Coal & Oil Co., Inc., 11 Thomas Street announces the election of Robert Hogan Jr. as vice president of the firm.

Mr. Hogan was born in Kingston and graduated from the Kingston school system. He was in the U. S. Army for three years, serving in this country and Europe.

He is married to the former Eleanor Mearns of Ellenville and they are the parents of three daughters.

Ruby Acquittal

with a brown shirt, looked pale and his expression was grave.

The historic trial began formally at 9:04 a. m. (CST).

The courtroom was completely filled.

A panel of 900 jury candidates — nearly double the normal number—was called in order to qualify 12 as unprejudiced.

Ruby, 52, a nightclub operator, shot Oswald Nov. 24, two days after the President was killed in Dallas and Oswald was charged with murdering him.

Tiff Over Searches

There was an exchange between Belli and Judge Brown over the fact that spectators are being searched for weapons and that such a procedure might come to the attention of prospective jurors. Belli declared:

"An excess of protection or over-zealous protection will make prospective jurors more aware of the atmosphere on Dallas."

"Mr. Belli," Judge Brown replied, "the prospective jurors will never know it."

Everyone entering was searched by a deputy sheriff.

Both the judge and Belli received a number of telegrams and letters before the proceedings started. A telegram to Brown called Ruby's shooting of Oswald a "cold-blooded murder."

The defense motion for acquittal was based on the results of a psychiatric examination of Ruby, ordered by the state, and conducted by three psychiatrists. The neurological evidence contained in the report was locked up in the custody of the court.

There have been conflicting reports about the contents. One was that the report showed no brain damage, the other that it did disclose organic brain damage.

The state contends Ruby was completely sane when he shot Oswald. Homicide Police Capt. Will Fritz and officer James R. Leavell—who was handcuffed to Oswald when Ruby shot him—have testified that Ruby looked calm at that moment. Ruby shot Oswald at close range with a snub-nosed, 38-caliber pistol Nov. 24.

Two unusual elements hang darkly over this case.

One is the speculation that Kennedy's death was the result of a monstrous conspiracy, and that Ruby killed Oswald to "keep him from talking." No evidence has appeared to support this. On the contrary, in a series of ghost-written articles under Ruby's name, the accused man said:

"No one knew I was going to shoot Oswald—not even me. No one helped me or gave me access. I didn't do it intentionally. I didn't even know I had done it."

The other is Belli's contention that Dallas is so saturated with prejudice and feelings of guilt that Ruby cannot get a fair trial here. He says people in Dallas want a "sacrifice" to purge the name of the city.

Last week, Belli fought to have the trial moved to some other city. After presiding Judge Joe B. Brown ordered the lawyers to begin trying to select a jury today, Belli said:

"The people of Dallas, perhaps unconsciously, have to have a sacrifice in order to cleanse themselves, to prove Dallas is a law abiding community. They feel if Ruby is executed, it would re-esfablish some sense of law and order."

Last month, Judge Brown ordered a neurological examination of Ruby by three psychiatrists, one requested by the prosecution, one by the defense, the third appointed by the judge.

Brown said their report is now in custody of the court.

Two Railroad Men Are Injured When Engine Hits Car

Two New York Central Railroad employes were injured at 11:45 a. m. Sunday, when a two-diesel engine train hauling 123 freight cars, crashed into a stalled car on the Dargan's Road crossing, Town of Saugerties.

Trooper John McMickle of Kingston, said a 1961 car driven by William Ware, 29, of Rochester, was traveling along the road when it stalled and became stuck on the railroad crossing.

Ware, troopers reported, jumped from the vehicle and tried to flag down the freight train en route from Weehauken, N. J. to Selkirk. The engineer, Arnold Holgate, 61, of Union City, N. J., applied the emergency brakes on the diesels, but was unable to stop before the lead engine hit the stalled vehicle.

According to an investigation by Trooper David Wachtel of the Kingston station, Leo Brennan, 61, of Haverstraw, conductor on the train, and William Rowe, 59, flagman, of Little Ferry, N. J., were injured when the impact hurled them to the floor of the caboose. They were taken to Kingston Hospital and treated for lacerations and other injuries.

Also aiding in the investigation were Saugerties Village Police Officers Edward Sweeney and William Johnson.

Loot Recovered From Burglary In Doctor's Home

Local police today reported recovery of silverware, jewelry and other items taken in a recent burglary at the home of Dr. Maurice H. Silk, 84 Main Street, and continued investigation of other thefts.

Theft of some $240 from a filing cabinet in the Kingston Knitting Mills, 139 Cornell Street, was reported this morning. Police said they found no evidence to indicate that anyone had broken into the building.

Still under probe is the theft of two pumps valued at $800 from the yard of the Reliance Marine Transportation & Construction Corp., 615 Abeel Street, and reported theft of $300 from Fenton Peoples, 52, of 249 East Union Street. Peoples told police the money was taken while he was in a downtown tavern Saturday night. Theft of the pumps from the boatyard was reported Saturday.

Detectives said the home of Dr. Silk had been entered by breaking a small window facing an alley. Jewelry taken included rings and watches.

Most of the loot, or possibly all of it, they said, has been recovered. It was found hidden under rock in a wooded area off Linderman Avenue. It included a set of silverware, flashlights, liquor and a variety of other items.

Would Hurt Freedom

In his talk on the much discussed abolishing of the local justice's court, Thayer said this move would take away authority from local areas, centralize additional power, give political leaders an opportunity to handpick judges. He also pointed out that it would be necessary to have assistant judges at considerable extra cost to sit in at various places and the move would destroy local authority. Thayer said the justice's court as it now exists was "the foundation of our way of life.

Thayer told the magistrates that the scales of justice were "balanced 90 percent for the criminal" and said every protection was thrown about the law violator or the wrong-doer. He called upon the Association to investigate and, said the Ulster County Bar Association and the Grand Jurors Association should recommend changes in the Penal Code to "give society a greater break."

During his talk he took issue with the jury system and also the manner in which jurors are treated after being summoned. Lateness in getting sessions of court started because the Court does not make its appearance promptly at the adjourned hour he said was delaying justice.

He also cited the present $5 a day paid jurors and said that no change in the jury payment plan has been made since 1932.

Dutchess county he noted pays $8 a day. He advocated raising the jury pay to correspond with the minimum hourly wage law with no less than five hours allowed for any day, even though jurors responded and were sent home immediately because of no case being ready.

Qualification of jurors was also touched upon. A case was cited where a juror had not heard much of the testimony due to poor hearing ability and inquired of a second juror with whom she was riding "what a witness had said."

Thayer advocated any self-employed person who gives up time to serve as a juror be paid a basic $2 an hour for service.

A night session of both Supreme and County Court was also advocated and he also cited the growing number of criminal cases on the court calendar.

Mrs. Cummings Is Critical, Injured In Traffic Mishap

A woman injured in a Taylor Street mishap early today is in critical condition at Kingston Hospital.

Three others were injured in city accidents over the weekend.

Mrs. Nanette Cummings, 39, of 207 Hurley Avenue, police said, suffered stomach injuries, bruises and contusions, when her sedan collided with a county highway department truck on Taylor Street this morning. She was taken to the hospital in a Doctor's ambulance.

Police said the sedan was headed north on Taylor Street, and the highway department vehicle, operated by Gustav Granlund, 52, of West Hurley, headed south, "was stopped at the time of impact." The car struck a front wheel. Officers Louis Sapp and Joseph Kivlan investigated.

ROBERT HOGAN JR.

Kingston Coal Vice President

Herbert L. Shultz, president of Kingston Coal & Oil Co., Inc., 11 Thomas Street announces the election of Robert Hogan Jr. as vice president of the firm.

Mr. Hogan was born in Kingston and graduated from the Kingston school system. He was in the U. S. Army for three years, serving in this country and Europe.

He is married to the former Eleanor Mearns of Ellenville and they are the parents of three daughters.

Ruby Acquittal

with a brown shirt, looked pale and his expression was grave.

The historic trial began formally at 9:04 a. m. (CST).

The courtroom was completely filled.

A panel of 900 jury candidates — nearly double the normal number—was called in order to qualify 12 as unprejudiced.

Ruby, 52, a nightclub operator, shot Oswald Nov. 24, two days after the President was killed in Dallas and Oswald was charged with murdering him.

Tiff Over Searches

There was an exchange between Belli and Judge Brown over the fact that spectators are being searched for weapons and that such a procedure might come to the attention of prospective jurors. Belli declared:

"An excess of protection or over-zealous protection will make prospective jurors more aware of the atmosphere on Dallas."

"Mr. Belli," Judge Brown replied, "the prospective jurors will never know it."

Everyone entering was searched by a deputy sheriff.

Both the judge and Belli received a number of telegrams and letters before the proceedings started. A telegram to Brown called Ruby's shooting of Oswald a "cold-blooded murder."

The defense motion for acquittal was based on the results of a psychiatric examination of Ruby, ordered by the state, and conducted by three psychiatrists. The neurological evidence contained in the report was locked up in the custody of the court.

There have been conflicting reports about the contents. One was that the report showed no brain damage, the other that it did disclose organic brain damage.

The state contends Ruby was completely sane when he shot Oswald. Homicide Police Capt. Will Fritz and officer James R. Leavell—who was handcuffed to Oswald when Ruby shot him—have testified that Ruby looked calm at that moment. Ruby shot Oswald at close range with a snub-nosed, 38-caliber pistol Nov. 24.

Two unusual elements hang darkly over this case.

One is the speculation that Kennedy's death was the result of a monstrous conspiracy, and that Ruby killed Oswald to "keep him from talking." No evidence has appeared to support this. On the contrary, in a series of ghost-written articles under Ruby's name, the accused man said:

"No one knew I was going to shoot Oswald—not even me. No one helped me or gave me access. I didn't do it intentionally. I didn't even know I had done it."

The other is Belli's contention that Dallas is so saturated with prejudice and feelings of guilt that Ruby cannot get a fair trial here. He says people in Dallas want a "sacrifice" to purge the name of the city.

Last week, Belli fought to have the trial moved to some other city. After presiding Judge Joe B. Brown ordered the lawyers to begin trying to select a jury today, Belli said:

"The people of Dallas, perhaps unconsciously, have to have a sacrifice in order to cleanse themselves, to prove Dallas is a law abiding community. They feel if Ruby is executed, it would re-establish some sense of law and order."

Last month, Judge Brown ordered a neurological examination of Ruby by three psychiatrists, one requested by the prosecution, one by the defense, the third appointed by the judge.

Brown said their report is now in custody of the court.

Two Railroad Men Are Injured When Engine Hits Car

Two New York Central Railroad employes were injured at 11:45 a. m. Sunday, when a two-diesel engine train hauling 123 freight cars, crashed into a stalled car on the Dargan's Road crossing, Town of Saugerties.

Trooper John McMickle of Kingston, said a 1961 car driven by William Ware, 29, of Rochester, was traveling along the road when it stalled and became stuck on the railroad crossing.

Ware, troopers reported, jumped from the vehicle and tried to flag down the freight train en route from Weehauken, N. J. to Selkirk. The engineer, Arnold Holgate, 61, of Union City, N. J., applied the emergency brakes on the diesels, but was unable to stop before the lead engine hit the stalled vehicle.

According to an investigation by Trooper David Wachtel of the Kingston station, Leo Brennan, 61, of Haverstraw, conductor on the train, and William Rowe, 59, flagman, of Little Ferry, N. J., were injured when the impact hurled them to the floor of the caboose. They were taken to Kingston Hospital and treated for lacerations and other injuries.

Also aiding in the investigation were Saugerties Village Police Officers Edward Sweeney and William Johnson.

Loot Recovered From Burglary In Doctor's Home

Local police today reported recovery of silverware, jewelry and other items taken in a recent burglary at the home of Dr. Maurice H. Silk, 84 Main Street, and continued investigation of other thefts.

Theft of some $240 from a filing cabinet in the Kingston Knitting Mills, 139 Cornell Street, was reported this morning. Police said they found no evidence to indicate that anyone had broken into the building.

Still under probe is the theft of two pumps valued at $800 from the yard of the Reliance Marine Transportation & Construction Corp., 615 Abeel Street, and reported theft of $300 from Fenton Peoples, 52, of 249 East Union Street. Peoples told police the money was taken while he was in a downtown tavern Saturday night. Theft of the pumps from the boatyard was reported Saturday.

Detectives said the home of Dr. Silk had been entered by breaking a small window facing an alley. Jewelry taken included rings and watches.

Most of the loot, or possibly all of it, they said, has been recovered. It was found hidden under rock in a wooded area off Linderman Avenue. It included a set of silverware, flashlights, liquor and a variety of other items.

Trumps Pulled With Safety

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today we will be concerned with trump management. There is a pretty good general rule which is that declarer should pull trumps as soon as he can do so safely, provided he has no need to any ruffing with the short hand.

South trumps the second heart and if he is careless he will plow straight ahead and draw trumps. It will take him four leads to get all the trumps whereupon he will knock out the ace of diamonds. East will lead another heart and South will have to ruff with his last trump.

He will be able to cash three diamond tricks, but will lose the last two tricks to the ace of clubs and a heart.

If South is careful he will note that dummy's deuce of trumps has great potential value. He can afford to lead one round of clubs before drawing trumps. Then, if West takes the first club he won't be able to force South with another heart, because South will be able to ruff in dummy.

If West ducks the first club South can afford to draw trumps. He will have one club trick in and will still make six trumps and three diamonds.

Of course, that play will lose if trumps are three-three and diamonds four-one, but the chance of the actual distribution occurring is considerably greater.

Benefits Detailed For Grain Growers

Growers who participate in the 1964 Feed Grain Program will have definite advantages over growers who elect not to participate, according to Joseph Sauer, chairmen, agriculture stabilization and conservation-the acreage planted in 1964 to Ulster County Committee.

First, he explained, the participating grower earns a diversion payment for reducing his 1964 acreage of corn, barley, or grain sorghum, thereby assuring himself of a substantial income from the diverted acres regardless of drought, flood, insects, hail or crop disease.

This is true of the price-support payment which is made on one or more of the three feed grains no matter what disposition is made of the crop, the price support payment is assured.

Third, price-support loans and purchase agreements will be available on a participating farmer's entire 1964 production of the three feed grains.

And, if the participating farmer requests it, an advance payment of part of the diversion payment will be made at the time of signing up or as soon as possible after that time.

Growers take part in the feed grain program by diverting at least 20 percent of the farm's feed grain base acreage into an approved conserving use and carrying out other provisions of the program. If more than the minimum acreage is divirted, a higher rate of payment will apply.

Farm operators may file applications to take part in the 1964 feed grain program at their ASC County Office, 54 John Street, any time, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The signup period extends from February 10 through March 27.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

Sometime ago Mrs. Herbert F. Lown of 72 Orchard Street, Kingston, sent me a copy of the August 1963 Harper's. An article starting on page 76 is called: "New York Drowns Another Valley." It is written by assistant professor of English at Dartmouth College. He writes, that originally, New York supplied its own water from local wells, like the famous Tea Water Pump on Queen Street, which could turn out 30,000 gallons a day. Then, in 1834, because of increasing pollution of the ground water in Manhattan, the state legislature gave New York the power to condemn land outside the city limits for the purpose of building reservoirs and aqueducts." Since then no matter how clean, nice, fertile, or necessary a community, if needed, it is flooded for more water for New York City. We, up here know the rest.

Remember when New York City came to the Catskills, where it is said it now owns and stores some 380 billion gallons of water, which, as he writes, sit on 35 square miles of former farmland of some five counties, including Ulster. He describes the section near Route 10 toward Deposit, below Walton, with big signs reading "This Valley to Be Flooded — under the control of the Board of Water Supply, City of New York." He tells about the procession of bulldozers going across the fields, how every 10th or 15th maple for some 20 miles had a notice of disposition nailed to it. The biggest houses had a sign out front designating it as headquarters for the district engineer of the Board of Water Supply. He copied a sign on Judd's Hardware Store in Cannonsville, reading: "Closed—no gas, no money, no nothing."

He describes these various villages in our Catskill Mountain area that are to be flooded for the thirsty New Yorkers, who do not even know they exist. They were in the midst of taking five villages, which would put out of business some hundred dairy farms, which were doing a million dollars' worth of business yearly. Between the two dams, he wrote, the county was about ruined, and it used to be first in the state for milk production. I remember hearing some of these farmers being interviewed on the TV hardworking, clean, nice farmers, with generations in back of them, of the same type of salt of the earth folks who built up this section and country. When they didn't have, they went without in those days.

Noel Perrin did some research on where New Yorkers got their water back in the middle 1840's. "Up until 1842, when the first of the upstate reservoirs came into being, the New Yorker could buy his water by bucket from traveling carts, that sold it for a penny a gallon, which was a lot in those days. A rich man could buy piped water, which reached his house in wooden pipes from the old Manhattan Co. The poor used about three pails a day, they said.

Those were the days before metered water like our wonderful modern system in Kingston. The Manhattan Company charged according to fireplaces in the house. For one to four fireplaces they paid the company $5 a year for water, for a fifth fireplace, you paid another $1.25, up to a maximum of $20 which was the fixed price for houses with sixteen or more fireplaces. It did not work so well, for the customers were not only careless with the water, but gave it away to poor neighbors, and so did grocers to their customers with an order. That is when the Manhattan Company decided it was much easier to make money by going into the banking business. They were selling water from 1799 to 1842.

NEW YORK (AP) — Having about finished with the federal income tax cut, the Congress may consider its task of raising revenue out of the way. Now it can turn to the other side of the federal budget—how to spend the money to be collected or borrowed.

Figures Could Vary

But in neither case can it be in absolute control of these figures.

New tax rates and other revenues should return $93 billion, if everything goes as expected in the next fiscal year.

But if corporate profits expand at a faster rate than predicted, the new 50 per cent income tax rate might bring in more than the old 52 per cent rate did in 1963 earnings. If the unexpected happens and business slumps after midyear, Treasury collections could be off sharply.

The same holds for individual income tax returns. If personal incomes rise as they're supposed to, the new rates will bring the amount the Treasury counts on. If they should suddenly tumble, the Treasury deficit could soar.

It has happened before. Unexpected hard times brought a skimpy receipts and turned a predicted Treasury surplus into a $12 billion deficit in fiscal 1959.

Can Change Overnight

Congress can come closer to determining how much will be spent. But a large part of this, too, is beyond its control, for one reason or another.

Sometimes a sudden economic emergency will cause a rush of new spending to prime the pump. Weather, or foreign politics, can change the cost of the various farm programs.

But a lot of the spending in any one year has already been set by prior government action and by carry-over funds before Congress votes on the new authorizations.

The budget submitted for fiscal 1965, starting July 1, calls for nearly $98 billion of expenditures. The Tax Foundation Inc. asserts that only 30 per cent of this is under effective control of this session of Congress. The nonprofit organization with an avowed leaning toward frugality says that $42 billion to be spent in the next fiscal year is for projects already approved by Congress, with the spending authority carried over from prior years.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

NEW YORK (AP) — Bing Crosby makes only an occasional television appearance. Each of his shows, however, has been delightful and the most recent, on CBS Saturday, perhaps was the best of all.

The music was tuneful, the dancing graceful and ingenious, the sketches amusing and the guest stars talented.

Peter Gennaro, the bright dancing star, was great and the hit number of the whole show perhaps was his light-footed duet with Kathryn Crosby. Bing's young wife demonstrated that she could sing nicely, too.

Crosby was his usual relaxed self, singing with Rosemary Clooney, exchanging the usual insult banter with Bob Hope and generally keeping things moving.

Another happy weekend note was the premiere Friday night of ABC's new Western series, "Destry," a tongue-in-cheek affair reminiscent of those wonderful early "Maverick" shows.

Destry is played by John Gavin who is an attractive cross between James Stewart and James Garner. He is supposed to be hunting down a fellow who framed him, but he's not very serious about it. It's just a device to move him to comedic, each week.

All in all it was a fine weekend of television, without even one drama about drug addiction. Even the Beatles on Ed Sullivans Show Sunday night seemed fun, or am I getting accustomed to their hairdos?

Recommended tonight: "Hollywood and the Stars," NBC, 9:30-10 (EST) — "The Angry Screen," a study of films used for propaganda purposes.

An Army spokesman said the helicopter was firing machine guns on the base's Metz range when it crashed. The aircraft, which operated out of Ft. Benning, Ga., was attached to the 11th Air Assault Division.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Rockefeller Is Driving for Approval Of Liquor Program, Full-Crew Repeal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller opened a drive today to win the Legislature's approval of the Moreland Commission's entire liquor program and his own plan for repeal of the railroad full-crew laws.

The Republican governor called the Legislature's GOP leaders to a closed conference (4 p.m. EST) to urge prompt passage of the measures.

A source close to Rockefeller said the governor was "deeply concerned" over the Legislature's handling of the full-crew and liquor proposals and intended to press hard for favorable action.

Rockefeller was said to be disturbed also about delay in acting on his request to restore the "presentment" power to grand juries—that is, the right to issue reports that criticize public officials.

The governor returned to Albany to take a hand in legislative affairs before launching another prolonged campaign effort in New Hampshire's presidential primary election. He leaves Wednesday for a five day swing through the Granite State.

Meanwhile, there were these developments in state government:

—Republican State Chairman Fred A. Young said agitation from the New York City suburbs for more state aid for education was strictly "a local problem." This put him at odds with Assembly Speaker Joseph F. Carlino, of Nassau County, who has been pressing for more school aid.

— Onondaga County's five - member GOP delegation to the Legislature came up with a plan to cut $51 million from Rockefeller's $2.9-billion budget. The economy-minded group has played a prominent role in the "budget revolts" of previous years.

—Rockefeller appointed an 11-member committee to study the question of raising the state's minimum wage to $1.50 an hour. By instructing the group to go into the matter "in depth," he indictated no action could be expected at the current legislative session, about a month away from adjournment.

Rockefeller declared his "full support" for the Moreland Commission plan a week ago. The commission proposed to remove state price controls on liquor and lift a variety of restrictions on the number and location of liquor outlets.

He sent the program to the Legislature in a single, omnibus bill, but the GOP leaders quickly carved it up into six separate measures. It was reported that thought most of the proposals could not be passed.

The source said Rockefeller was unhappy over this treatment of his bill and would appeal for a floor vote on the entire program.

Similarly, Rockefeller is seeking an early vote on his call for repeal of the full-crew laws. Railroads say the laws, which specify the minimum size of train crews, force them to retain more than 2,000 unnecessary workers.

Carlino reported last week that he was unable to obtain enough Republican votes to pass the bill as it was then framed. Since then, the measure has been amended to provide that no job could be aboiished until the worker holding it either quit, retired, died or was dismissed for good cause.

Carlino plans to submit the amended version to an Assembly GOP conference to determine whether it can be passed in this form.

Rockefeller asked for passage of a presentment bill in his "State-of-the-State' message on Jan. 8, but the measure is still in committee. No explanation was given for the delay in bringing it to a vote.

Rockefeller named Courtney C. Brown, dean of Columbia University's Graduate School of Business, as chairman of the minimum-wage study committee.

The state minimum is $1.15 an hour and will rise to $1.25 in October. Civil rights groups and New York City Democrats have been clamoring for an immediate increase to $1.50.

Upstate Soldier Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says Sp. 6 Walter T. Guzek of Amsterdam, N.Y. died Feb. 8 on Okinawa.

The Army said Saturday Guzek was reported to have died of asphyxiation due to a trauma.

Woodstock Board Will Meet Tuesday

The Woodstock Town Board will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 8 p. m. in the Town Hall.

Because of a business commitment, Harry F. Edinger, Director of Environment Sanitation of the Ulster County Board of Health, will not appear as planned. His appearance will be re-scheduled at a later date.

Lutheran Pastor Hurt in Mishap

A Columbia County minister, his daughter and a friend were injured Saturday in a headon collision on Route 9, just north of the Hudson city line.

The Rev. Kristaps Valters, pastor of Hudson's Emanuel Lutheran Church, remained in Columbia Memorial Hospital Sunday, in fair condition with multiple injuries. His daughter, Ruth, a Hudson High School senior, and a friend, Elliott Richman, also a high school senior, were treated at the hospital and released.

State Poilce at Claverack, said the other car was operated by Robert Coons, 21, of 211 Allen Street, Hudson, who was also in fair condition at the same hospital. Troopers said charges are pending against Coons, who reportedly crossed into the opposite driving lane where the headon crash occurred.

statement, architectural rendering of the plan, Planning Board hearings and Common Council approval, Yosman said. The developer then is clasified as the "pre-qualified" bidder, Yosman said, or the sponsor who has been "cleared" for participation in the private enterprise investment.

There was no indication as to what degree local people were interested in the BE redevelopment project.

However, The Freeman reported earlier this month that the vast majority of business establishments affected by the BE Project Area that are interested in the physical changes involved in the project, indicated that they would prefer to remain in the project area rather than relocate elsewhere.

56 Respond

Yosman said then that a survey by the UR agency showed that out of 83 commercial and industrial establishments polled, 56 responded to the questionnaires sent to them by the agency. He said that the survey showed there was a "possibility" of 43 establishments remaining in the area; a "probability" of 26 establishments for development of the commercial area; 12 establishments for development of the industrial area; five establishments being declared as "nonconforming" in relation to the Urban Renewal Plan, and 20 establishments interested in seeking aid from the Small Business Administration.

Yosman told The Freeman that after publication of the survey findings, a number of establishments which failed to respond to the questionnaire contacted the UR agency and indicated their desire to remain in the Broadway East Project area.

Response from a potential sponsor in the BE Project area marks a major stride in the city's Urban Renewal Program, Yosman said. The Uptown Project plan currently is under review by the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Fire Destroys Frame Farmhouse

Origin of fire that extensively damaged most of a large frame farmhouse used as a summer bungalow colony on a town road between Whitfield and Mettacahonts, Sunday night, was not immediately determined, according to Accord Fire Chief Edward Carle.

The chief said the fire in the unoccupied house, owned by Ernest Roessling, was discovered at about 7 p. m. yesterday, and Accord firemen in command of Assistant Chief Floyd Countryman responded to an alarm with the department's apparatus and a large turnout of volunteers.

Fire companies from Tobasco, Kripplebush and Kerhonkson were sent to the scene through mutual aid to assist. Chief Carle, who arrived later to take command of firefighters with Deputy Chief Countryman, said flames burned through the rear of the building and burned most of the roof.

Chief Carle reported the manpower was adequate and firemen had a sufficient supply of water provided by tankers from the area fire companies.

Firemen were at the scene for about five hours, the chief said. "We were hampered by three things," the chief stated." Fire repeatedly rekindled in the mattresses throughout the building, strong gusts of wind caused the fire to break out time after time in the mattresses, and the metal ceilings made it difficult for firemen to get water on the flames."

Each of the many mattresses had to be given special attention by firemen, who ripped them apart to extinguish the smoldering fire, fire officials said.

The fire was secure at about midnight, Chief Carle reported.

Western Union

and maintained by Western Union, including six tickers in Kingston.

Private wire ticker service, including channels and ticker equipment, is furnished by Western Union to the New York Stock Exchange to reach the Exchange's subscribers throughout the nation, with the exception of the lower Manhattan financial district, south of Chambers street, which is provided by the New York Stock Exchange's ticker-quotation department.

The new "900" tickers will print sales in the same manner as the "500" ticker, but with slightly smaller letters and numbers and on a one-inch-wide paper or cellulous acetate tapes. The new tape will be a quarter inch wider to meet needs of variabe speed operation for Trans Lux projector operation.

This year marks the 96th birthday of the ticker which was invented by Edward A. Calahan, who began his work on the ticker in the summer of 1867. The first experimental ticker was placed in the office of a New York stock brokerage firm, David Groesbeck & Company between Christmas in 1867 and New Years. Calahan was granted a patent on April 21, 1868.

Rickshaw Driver

G. Nes scheduled a meeting with Premier Nguyen Khanh to discuss new security measures for the nearly 10,000 Americans in Saigon.

Campaign of Terror

Since the beginning of the year, Communist guerrillas have begun a campaign of terror specifically against Americans, including civilians. Vietnamese intelligence agents recently reported that Communist terrorists have moved into Saigon for that purpose.

U.S. military police swarmed the streets of Saigon after a tip that a bombing attempt might be made against the hospital where some of the injured from the theater blast were taken. No explosion occurred.

On Feb. 1, a terrorist bomb left in a Saigon bar killed a U.S. serviceman and a Vietnamese and injured four other Americans. Three days later a Viet Cong assassination squad broke into a U.S. military compound in Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon, wounding one American officer.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market showed a slightly higher edge in moderately active trading early this afternoon.

Gains by rails and selected blue chips in other groups tilted the balance to the upside.

The steels were up on balance amid reports of continued strength in demand for steel.

The trend was a little higher among building materials, cigar and cigarette stocks, rubbers and mail order-retails.

The market seemed to be feeling its way, brokers said, amid conflicting opinions as to the probable trend. Business news remained good, however.

Storm Drops

making driving hazardous.

All three storm - connected deaths resulted from automobile accidents on slippery roads.

Ashland, in the eastern Catskill Mountains, recorded upwards of 15 inches of snow.

19 Inches on Ground

To the east, in Rensselaer County, Berlin measured a 13-inch fall that raised the total snow on the ground to 19 inches.

The Chenango County communities of Norwich and Greene measured at least a foot.

Albany had 10 inches. Binghamton measured 7 inches, Glens Falls, Olean and Poughkeepsie, 6.

Wet, heavy snow pelted eastern New York but the western part of the state received powdery snow, whipped by winds of close to 30 miles an hour in gusts.

Dies in Collision

At CLIFTON Springs, Ontario County, Mrs. Hazel Van Norman, 59, of Clyde, lost her life in a two-car collision on a slippery road yesterday. The crash occurred after one of the cars went into a skid.

The icy going also was a factor in a two-car crash at Schuylerville, Saratoga County. The dead were Mrs. Laura Tabor, 55, of Schuylerville, and James Ladd, 16, of Hudson Falls.

The Weather Bureau also reported the following measured snowfalls:

Oneonta, 5; Buffalo 4; Rochester, 3; Syracuse, Utica and Plattsburgh, 2 and Watertown, last year's "Snow Capital," 1.

Report 13 Deaths In Near Blizzard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sneak Northeast storm whipped by gale force winds deposited up to 18 inches of snow and caused at least 13 deaths in New England Sunday.

Temperatures dropped into the teens over much of the area after the storm passed. Many highways, cleared of all but an inch or two of packed snow, became covered by sheets of ice.

92 MPH at Cape

The wind, clocked at 92 miles per hour at Truro on Cape Cod, lashed coastal communities, built up huge drifts and created blizzard-like conditions.

In Maine, four women drowned when their car slid off U.S. 1 and landed upside down in a Passamaquoddy Bay cove at Robbinston.

At least nine other persons — six in Massachusetts and three in Connecticut—died of heart attacks while shoveling snow or from storm-caused exhaustion.

Eighteen inches of snow fell in the Plymouth, N.H., area. Lebanon, N.H., had 14; Worcester and Bedford, Mass., 12; Brunswick, Maine, 11; Boston, 10; Hartford, Conn., 8 and Montpelier, Vt., 6.

Closed Airports

The storm closed airports, all but immobilized highway travel and caused power failures in dozens of communities.

During the full fury of the storm, visibility was almost zero on most highways in Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

The storm moved out to sea south of Nova Scotia Sunday night.

Fresh snow also covered all of upstate New York, ranging up to 15 inches in the eastern Catskill Mountains. Drifting was reported in some areas, chiefly along Lake Erie.

Rain on Coast

Generall fair and dry weather prevailed in the major part of the nation. More rain fell along coastal sections of the North Pacific and there was light snow in the northern Rockies and the Dakotas.

Temperatures were near zero in northern lower Michigan and mostly in the teens in sections of the central Rockies, the eastern Great Lakes, the upper Ohio Valley as well as in the snow-covered Northeast.

Readings were in the 20s and 30s in most of the nation, with the 50s in Southern California, the lower Rio Grande Valley and central Florida and in the 60s in extreme southern Florida.

Three Mishaps In Saugerties Village Reported

Three traffic accidents in Saugerties Village on Sunday were attributed to the hazardous driving conditions during and following the weekend snowstorm of near blizzard proportions.

Four persons were injured in a three-car mishap at the intersection of Partition and Dock Streets in the village shortly after midnight Sunday, Acting Sgt. Donald Sullivan reported.

Injured and treated by Dr. Herman Ash were:

John D. Finger, 21, of Katsbaan, operator of one vehicle, cut on left side of head. Gail Wager, no age or address given, reported to be a passenger in the Finger car, was badly shaken up, police said.

Clyde W. Rescott Jr., 33 of 9 Peach Lane, Barclay Heights, driver of another car, cut lip, and a passenger, Lois B. Rescott, no age given, cut on leg and shock.

The other driver, who did not report injuries was Arthur A. Soures, 36, of 134 O'Neil Street, Kingston.

Police said the Rescott car was proceeding south on Partition Street and applied his brakes near the turn at the intersection. The car slid on the snowy pavement into the left lane and was in collision with the Finger car proceeding north. The Souers vehicle, also proceeding north. The Soures vehicle, also proceeding south slid on the pavement and skidded into the two stalled vehicles. All cars sustained extensive damage, according to Officer John Kolano, who investigated.

No injuries were reported Sunday at 1:10 p. m. in a mishap on South Partition and Hill Streets. There were also no injuries in a mishap Suday 10:30 at the intersection of Routes 212 and 32, outside of the village. Village police were called to investigate.

Stubborn Chimney Fire at Shady Home

Firemen were summoned to the home of Maynard Keefe in Shady, at 7 p. m. Sunday, to extinguish a stubborn chimney fire.

Woodstock Fire Co. 3 of shady in charge of Lieuts. Paul Shultis and Donald Smith, with 17 men, responded to an alarm with a bumper and tank truck. They were summoned through the Ladies' Auxiliary Mobilization plan and the central fire siren.

Woodstock Fire Co. 1 responded with a pumper and emergency truck in charge of Chief George Haythorne and Assistant Chief Mervin Doremus. The attic of the residence was heavily damaged with smoke.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary served coffee to firemen on their return to their stations.

Two Hurt in Car Mishap Saturday

Two persons were injured Saturday at 11:05 a. m. when their cars collided on Route 9W, Town of Ulster, according to State Trooper David Wachtel of the Kingston station.

Trooper John McMickle said 19-year-old Dorothy A. Sorbello, of Port Ewen, was attempting to turn into a parking lot, when the vehicle was in collision with a northbound car operated by Carol A. Williams, 21, of Saugerties, who received lacerations of the mouth.

Miss Sorbello was treated at Benedictine Hospital for neck injuries, authorities said.

With $70,000 in 2 Stocks It Is Time to Diversify

ROGER E. SPEAR

By Roger E. Spear

Q) "I am 53 and am able to put $3,000 to $5,000 a year in stocks. I currently hold 200 shares of duPont and 150 shares General Motors. I'll be getting more General Motors later from my duPont stock. Do you think I should now start broadening my holdings by buying such stocks as American Telephone—and for kicks — Litton Industries?" F.J.

A) You're a very fortunate man, if I may say so.

You have $50,000 invested in duPont at current market, and you will receive another 100 shares of GM in about a year, bringing your holdings in that stock to about $20,000 in value if the present price is maintained.

But much as I like these two stocks, I think your position in them is fairly heavy and that you should now begin to diversify, preferably with good growth stocks.

American Telephone seems entirely satisfactory, and I suggest also Corn Products and Delaware Power & Light. By all means buy Litton—not just for kicks but because it has compiled a powerful growth record that I believe will continue.

Q) "I'm a college freshman, aged 21, and I'm seriously considering the stock market as a medium for investment in later years. I have $400 that I could invest now. Do you think I should do so? What do you suggest?" G.H.

A) You seem to be a pretty foresighted young man, and I see no reason why you should not invest now.

Once you've started to acquire shares, you'll find yourself reading more financial news and acquiring investment knowledge. I strongly advise you to buy only the highest quality for your initial purchase.

My recommendation would be five shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey, the world leader in petroleum, which has lifted its dividend four years in a row and has reported record earnings for 1963.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Rockefeller Is Driving for Approval Of Liquor Program, Full-Crew Repeal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller opened a drive today to win the Legislature's approval of the Moreland Commission's entire liquor program and his own plan for repeal of the railroad full-crew laws.

The Republican governor called the Legislature's GOP leaders to a closed conference (4 p.m. EST) to urge prompt passage of the measures.

A source close to Rockefeller said the governor was "deeply concerned" over the Legislature's handling of the full-crew and liquor proposals and intended to press hard for favorable action.

Rockefeller was said to be disturbed also about delay in acting on his request to restore the "presentment" power to grand juries—that is, the right to issue reports that criticize public officials.

The governor returned to Albany to take a hand in legislative affairs before launching another prolonged campaign effort in New Hampshire's presidential primary election. He leaves Wednesday for a five day swing through the Granite State.

Meanwhile, there were these developments in state government:

—Republican State Chairman Fred A. Young said agitation from the New York City suburbs for more state aid for education was strictly "a local problem." This put him at odds with Assembly Speaker Joseph F. Carlino, of Nassau County, who has been pressing for more school aid.

— Onondaga County's five-member GOP delegation to the Legislature came up with a plan to cut $51 million from Rockefeller's $2.9-billion budget. The economy-minded group has played a prominent role in the "budget revolts" of previous years.

—Rockefeller appointed an 11-member committee to study the question of raising the state's minimum wage to $1.50 an hour. By instructing the group to go into the matter "in depth," he indictated no action could be expected at the current legislative session, about a month away from adjournment.

Rockefeller declared his "full support" for the Moreland Commission plan a week ago. The commission proposed to remove state price controls on liquor and lift a variety of restrictions on the number and location of liquor outlets.

He sent the program to the Legislature in a single, omnibus bill, but the GOP leaders quickly carved it up into six separate measures. It was reported that thought most of the proposals could not be passed.

The source said Rockefeller was unhappy over this treatment of his bill and would appeal for a floor vote on the entire program.

Similarly, Rockefeller is seeking an early vote on his call for repeal of the full-crew laws. Railroads say the laws, which specify the minimum size of train crews, force them to retain more than 2,000 unnecessary workers.

Carlino reported last week that he was unable to obtain enough Republican votes to pass the bill as it was then framed. Since then, the measure has been amended to provide that no job could be aboiished until the worker holding it either quit, retired, died or was dismissed for good cause.

Carlino plans to submit the amended version to an Assembly GOP conference to determine whether it can be passed in this form.

Rockefeller asked for passage of a presentment bill in his "State-of-the-State' message on Jan. 8, but the measure is still in committee. No explanation was given for the delay in bringing it to a vote.

Rockefeller named Courtney C. Brown, dean of Columbia University's Graduate School of Business, as chairman of the minimum-wage study committee.

The state minimum is $1.15 an hour and will rise to $1.25 in October. Civil rights groups and New York City Democrats have been clamoring for an immediate increase to $1.50.

The Army said Saturday Guzek was reported to have died of asphyxiation due to a trauma.

Woodstock Board Will Meet Tuesday

The Woodstock Town Board will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 8 p. m. in the Town Hall.

Because of a business commitment, Harry F. Edinger, Director of Environment Sanitation of the Ulster County Board of Health, will not appear as planned. His appearance will be re-scheduled at a later date.

Lutheran Pastor Hurt in Mishap

A Columbia County minister, his daughter and a friend were injured Saturday in a headon collision on Route 9, just north of the Hudson city line.

The Rev. Kristaps Valters, pastor of Hudson's Emanuel Lutheran Church, remained in Columbia Memorial Hospital Sunday, in fair condition with multiple injuries. His daughter, Ruth, a Hudson High School senior, and a friend, Elliott Richman, also a high school senior, were treated at the hospital and released.

State Poilce at Claverack, said the other car was operated by Robert Coons, 21, of 211 Allen Street, Hudson, who was also in fair condition at the same hospital. Troopers said charges are pending against Coons, who reportedly crossed into the opposite driving lane where the head-on crash occurred.

New York

statement, architectural rendering of the plan, Planning Board hearings and Common Council approval, Yosman said. The developer then is clasified as the "pre-qualified" bidder, Yosman said, or the sponsor who has been "cleared" for participation in the private enterprise investment.

There was no indication as to what degree local people were interested in the BE redevelopment project.

However, The Freeman reported earlier this month that the vast majority of business establishments affected by the BE Project Area that are interested in the physical changes involved in the project, indicated that they would prefer to remain in the project area rather than relocate elsewhere.

56 Respond

Yosman said then that a survey by the UR agency showed that out of 83 commercial and industrial establishments polled, 56 responded to the questionnaires sent to them by the agency. He said that the survey showed there was a "possibility" of 43 establishments remaining in the area; a "probability" of 26 establishments for development of the commercial area; 12 establishments for development of the industrial area; five establishments being declared as "nonconforming" in relation to the Urban Renewal Plan, and 20 establishments interested in seeking aid from the Small Business Administration.

Yosman told The Freeman that after publication of the survey findings, a number of establishments which failed to respond to the questionnaire contacted the UR agency and indicated their desire to remain in the Broadway East Project area.

Response from a potential sponsor in the BE Project area marks a major stride in the city's Urban Renewal Program, Yosman said. The Uptown Project plan currently is under review by the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Fire Destroys Frame Farmhouse

Origin of fire that extensively damaged most of a large frame farmhouse used as a summer bungalow colony on a town road between Whitfield and Mettacahonts, Sunday night, was not immediately determined, according to Accord Fire Chief Edward Carle.

The chief said the fire in the unoccupied house, owned by Ernest Roessling, was discovered at about 7 p. m. yesterday, and Accord firemen in command of Assistant Chief Floyd Countryman responded to an alarm with the department's apparatus and a large turnout of volunteers.

Fire companies from Tobasco, Kripplebush and Kerhonkson were sent to the scene through mutual aid to assist. Chief Carle, who arrived later to take command of firefighters with Deputy Chief Countryman, said flames burned through the rear of the building and burned most of the roof.

Chief Carle reported the manpower was adequate and firemen had a sufficient supply of water provided by tankers from the area fire companies.

Firemen were at the scene for about five hours, the chief said. "We were hampered by three things," the chief stated." Fire repeatedly rekindled in the mattresses throughout the building, strong gusts of wind caused the fire to break out time after time in the mattresses, and the metal ceilings made it difficult for firemen to get water on the flames."

Each of the many mattresses had to be given special attention by firemen, who ripped them apart to extinguish the smoldering fire, fire officials said.

The fire was secure at about midnight, Chief Carle reported.

Western Union

and maintained by Western Union, including six tickers in Kingston.

Private wire ticker service, including channels and ticker equipment, is furnished by Western Union to the New York Stock Exchange to reach the Exchange's subscribers throughout the nation, with the exception of the lower Manhattan financial district, south of Chambers street, which is provided by the New York Stock Exchange's ticker-quotation department.

The new "900" tickers will print sales in the same manner as the "500" ticker, but with slightly smaller letters and numbers and on a one-inch-wide paper or cellulous acetate tapes. The new tape will be a quarter inch wider to meet needs of variabe speed operation for Trans Lux projector operation.

This year marks the 96th birthday of the ticker which was invented by Edward A. Calahan, who began his work on the ticker in the summer of 1867. The first experimental ticker was placed in the office of a New York stock brokerage firm, David Groesbeck & Company between Christmas in 1867 and New Years. Calahan was granted a patent on April 21, 1868.

Rickshaw Driver

G. Nes scheduled a meeting with Premier Nguyen Khanh to discuss new security measures for the nearly 10,000 Americans in Saigon.

Campaign of Terror

Since the beginning of the year, Communist guerrillas have begun a campaign of terror specifically against Americans, including civilians. Vietnamese intelligence agents recently reported that Communist terrorists have moved into Saigon for that purpose.

U.S. military police swarmed the streets of Saigon after a tip that a bombing attempt might be made against the hospital where some of the injured from the theater blast were taken. No explosion occurred.

On Feb. 1, a terrorist bomb left in a Saigon bar killed a U.S. serviceman and a Vietnamese and injured four other Americans. Three days later a Viet Cong assassination squad broke into a U.S. military compound in Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon, wounding one American officer.

The market seemed to be feeling its way, brokers said, amid conflicting opinions as to the probable trend. Business news remained good, however.

Dies in Collision

At CLIFTON Springs, Ontario County, Mrs. Hazel Van Norman, 59, of Clyde, lost her life in a two-car collision on a slippery road yesterday. The crash occurred after one of the cars went into a skid.

The icy going also was a factor in a two-car crash at Schuylerville, Saratoga County. The dead were Mrs. Laura Tabor, 55, of Schuylerville, and James Ladd, 16, of Hudson Falls.

The Weather Bureau also reported the following measured snowfalls:

Oneonta, 5; Buffalo 4; Rochester, 3; Syracuse, Utica and Plattsburgh, 2 and Watertown, last year's "Snow Capital," 1.

Report 13 Deaths In Near Blizzard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sneak Northeast storm whipped by gale force winds deposited up to 18 inches of snow and caused at least 13 deaths in New England Sunday.

Temperatures dropped into the teens over much of the area after the storm passed. Many highways, cleared of all but an inch or two of packed snow, became covered by sheets of ice.

92 MPH at Cape

The wind, clocked at 92 miles per hour at Truro on Cape Cod, lashed coastal communities, built up huge drifts and created blizzard-like conditions.

In Maine, four women drowned when their car slid off U.S. 1 and landed upside down in a Passamaquoddy Bay cove at Robbinston.

At least nine other persons — six in Massachusetts and three in Connecticut—died of heart attacks while shoveling snow or from storm-caused exhaustion.

Eighteen inches of snow fell in the Plymouth, N.H., area. Lebanon, N.H., had 14; Worcester and Bedford, Mass., 12; Brunswick, Maine, 11; Boston, 10; Hartford, Conn., 8 and Montpelier, Vt., 6.

Closed Airports

The storm closed airports, all but immobilized highway travel and caused power failures in dozens of communities.

During the full fury of the storm, visibility was almost zero on most highways in Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

The storm moved out to sea south of Nova Scotia Sunday night.

Fresh snow also covered all of upstate New York, ranging up to 15 inches in the eastern Catskill Mountains. Drifting was reported in some areas, chiefly along Lake Erie.

Rain on Coast

Generall fair and dry weather prevailed in the major part of the nation. More rain fell along coastal sections of the North Pacific and there was light snow in the northern Rockies and the Dakotas.

Temperatures were near zero in northern lower Michigan and mostly in the teens in sections of the central Rockies, the eastern Great Lakes, the upper Ohio Valley as well as in the snow-covered Northeast.

Readings were in the 20s and 30s in most of the nation, with the 50s in Southern California, the lower Rio Grande Valley and central Florida and in the 60s in extreme southern Florida.

Three Mishaps In Saugerties Village Reported

Three traffic accidents in Saugerties Village on Sunday were attributed to the hazardous driving conditions during and following the weekend snowstorm of near blizzard proportions.

Four persons were injured in a three-car mishap at the intersection of Partition and Dock Streets in the village shortly after midnight Sunday, Acting Sgt. Donald Sullivan reported.

Injured and treated by Dr. Herman Ash were:

John D. Finger, 21, of Katsbaan, operator of one vehicle, cut on left side of head. Gail Wager, no age or address given, reported to be a passenger in the Finger car, was badly shaken up, police said.

Clyde W. Rescott Jr., 33 of 9 Peach Lane, Barclay Heights, driver of another car, cut lip, and a passenger, Lois B. Rescott, no age given, cut on leg and shock.

The other driver, who did not report injuries was Arthur A. Soures, 36, of 134 O'Neil Street, Kingston.

Police said the Rescott car was proceeding south on Partition Street and applied his brakes near the turn at the intersection. The car slid on the snowy pavement into the left lane and was in collision with the Finger car proceeding north. The Souers vehicle, also proceeding north. The Soures vehicle, also proceeding south slid on the pavement and skidded into the two stalled vehicles. All cars sustained extensive damage, according to Officer John Kolano, who investigated.

No injuries were reported Sunday at 1:10 p. m. in a mishap on South Partition and Hill Streets. There were also no injuries in a mishap Suday 10:30 at the intersection of Routes 212 and 32, outside of the village. Village police were called to investigate.

Stubborn Chimney Fire at Shady Home

Firemen were summoned to the home of Maynard Keefe in Shady, at 7 p. m. Sunday, to extinguish a stubborn chimney fire.

Woodstock Fire Co. 3 of shady in charge of Lieuts. Paul Shultis and Donald Smith, with 17 men, responded to an alarm with a bumper and tank truck. They were summoned through the Ladies' Auxiliary Mobilization plan and the central fire siren.

Woodstock Fire Co. 1 responded with a pumper and emergency truck in charge of Chief George Haythorne and Assistant Chief Mervin Doremus. The attic of the residence was heavily damaged with smoke.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary served coffee to firemen on their return to their stations.

Two Hurt in Car Mishap Saturday

Two persons were injured Saturday at 11:05 a. m. when their cars collided on Route 9W, Town of Ulster, according to State Trooper David Wachtel of the Kingston station.

Trooper John McMickle said 19-year-old Dorothy A. Sorbello, of Port Ewen, was attempting to turn into a parking lot, when the vehicle was in collision with a northbound car operated by Carol A. Williams, 21, of Saugerties, who received lacerations of the mouth.

Miss Sorbello was treated at Benedictine Hospital for neck injuries, authorities said.

With $70,000 in 2 Stocks It Is Time to Diversify

ROGER E. SPEAR

By Roger E. Spear

Q) "I am 53 and am able to put $3,000 to $5,000 a year in stocks. I currently hold 200 shares of duPont and 150 shares General Motors. I'll be getting more General Motors later from my duPont stock. Do you think I should now start broadening my holdings by buying such stocks as American Telephone—and for kicks — Litton Industries?" F.J.

A) You're a very fortunate man, if I may say so.

You have $50,000 invested in duPont at current market, and you will receive another 100 shares of GM in about a year, bringing your holdings in that stock to about $20,000 in value if the present price is maintained.

But much as I like these two stocks, I think your position in them is fairly heavy and that you should now begin to diversify, preferably with good growth stocks.

American Telephone seems entirely satisfactory, and I suggest also Corn Products and Delaware Power & Light. By all means buy Litton—not just for kicks but because it has compiled a powerful growth record that I believe will continue.

Q) "I'm a college freshman, aged 21, and I'm seriously considering the stock market as a medium for investment in later years. I have $400 that I could invest now. Do you think I should do so? What do you suggest?" G.H.

A) You seem to be a pretty foresighted young man, and I see no reason why you should not invest now.

Once you've started to acquire shares, you'll find yourself reading more financial news and acquiring investment knowledge. I strongly advise you to buy only the highest quality for your initial purchase.

My recommendation would be five shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey, the world leader in petroleum, which has lifted its dividend four years in a row and has reported record earnings for 1963.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Rocky Would Use Force on Cuba If Real Necessary

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York says that if elected president he would use force against Cuba, if necessary.

But Rockefeller, campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination, said Sunday his first move would be to work with Latin American countries to "reestablish the mutual respect and confidence which existed at the end of the war."

Rockefeller was interviewed on the American Broadcasting Co. television program, "Issues and Answers."

He said his policy on Cuba would have three objectives: To remove Soviet power from the island, to stop Prime Minister Fidel Castro's training of saboteurs, and to "restore the right of free choice to Cubans.

Rockefeller again said it was "Irresponsible" and "reckless" for Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, his chief opponent for the nomination, to advocate sending U.S. Marine to turn on the water supply for Guantanamo Naval Base after Castro had the water turned off.

Rockefeller said the Soviet Union and Cuba have too many soldiers on the island. And he noted Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threat to use rockets to counter any military action against Cuba.

Asked if he would ever use force, Rockefeller replied that force is "an integral part of international diplomacy." He said however, that diplomacy is like chess and many other moves are necessary.

Rockefeller said force should be used "at the right time and in the right way.

He said a "perfect example" of the wrong time to hesitate to use force was the late President John F. Kennedy's decision not to provide air cover for the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba.

Britain Is Losing 3 More Scientists

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—The brain drain of leading British scientists is claiming three more men from Birmingham University. Two are going to the United States and one to Australia.

Sir Robert Aitken, vice chancellor of the university, called for an increase of government grants to improve facilities for scientific research.

Dr. George Greenless, 41, senior lecturer in physics, says he has accepted a professorship at the University of Minnesota because facilities are better there.

Dr. George Chester, 35, acting head of the department of mathematical physics, said he will become a professor at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., because he believes he will get more financial support for his work.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sir Tyrone Guthrie, Irish giant of the theater, was in town to say some kind words for an old friend celebrating a birthday.

The old friend is William Shakespeare, born 400 years ago April 23. Guthrie came here as the first speaker in a program for the quadracentennial planned by the UCLA Extension Division, one of many such celebrations in all parts of the world.

Before taking off for other lectures at Berkeley and the Citadel in South Carolina, the famed director of the classics was asked what he thought of this year's to-do for the Bard.

"Oh, I think he'll survive," he replied. "It is a sign of greatness in such figures as Shakespeare and Verdi that they can survive any amount of mauling over the years."

He conceded that the celebration might even do Shakespeare some good, so long as the plays are accepted for their entertainment value and not as literature. He is appalled at how the young are exposed to Shakespeare.

"They should not be allowed to experience him too early," he observed. "High school is all right. But it is better for students not to be exposed at all than to be taught Shakespeare by a dull teacher."

Guthrie was also dubious about movies as a medium for appreciating Shakespeare.

"I thought Larry's (Olivier) 'Henry V' was well done, though more cinematic than Shakespeare," he observed. "But his 'Hamlet' was nonsense. It was ridiculous to say that this is a story of a man who could not make up his mind and then show a kind of Nazi guardsman elbowing everybody aside.

"As for Orson Welles' 'Macbeth,' it was rather a horror, but as with much of Welles' work, a horror with a touch of genius."

Aside from his lectures, Guthrie's contribution to the 1564-1964 celebration will be a staging of "Henry V" at the Tyrone Guthrie Playhouse in Minneapolis.

Guthrie, who rose to fame with his vigorous direction in the Old Vic, the Sadler's Wells and the New York theater, founded the Minneapolis theater last year after despairing of the stultifying economics of Broadway.

School Unit Plans World's Fair Trip

At a recent meeting of the Dental Aid Revolving Fund committee, Kingston Schools Consolidated, the group made plans to sponsor a bus trip to the New York World's Fair on Saturday, May 23, which will be observed as Ulster County Day.

A bus will leave the rear of the George Washington School at 8 a. m. The cost of the ticket will include entrance to the Fair Grounds. It was noted that reservations must be made on or before Feb. 26 with the secretary, Mrs. George Ballou, 202 West Chestnut Street or Miss June E. VanDerZee, 61 Newkirk Avenue or any school nurse teacher or dental hygiene teacher in the Consolidated School system.

THE TOBACCO CONTROVERSY

The tobacco industry is presenly beset by negative forces growing out of the constroversy over the ills of smoking. As a result, all of the best cigarette stocks are selling low.

The big companies are expanding their advertising in the attempt to allay disquieting news. And they are working overtime in bringing out new brands—filter and mentholated — to neutralize the public concern about smoking.

It is my opinion that this is only a public passing fancy. Millions of Americans are creatures of habit and the temporary storm against smoking will soon pass over.

I asked a brilliant editor, age about 50, who is a 'chain smoker,' if she were going to give up cigarette smoking. 'Of course not,' she quickly replied, and then she continued, 'bad eating, excessive drinking, and bad morals kill 100 people every year compared with the few who may die from smoking.'

She quoted a long list of examples that she had gathered over a period of time to prove her point.

Kids 15, 16, 17 often think it is smart to smoke. Here in New York City I am amazed in my walks through the streets to see the small bunches of adolescents hanging around sheltered places who are smoking cigarettes.

The population of the United States is now about 190,000,000. In 1970, it will be 215,000,000. In six years there will be 25,000,000 additional potential smokers and the temporary sag in the tobacco business will be over.

American Tobacco, the second-largest cigarette maker, with yearly sales of over one billion dollars, is selling to yield almost 6 per cent. In 1963, it earned $2.45 a share and paid $1.50 in dividends.

Liggett and Myers, the fourth-largest company, earned $6.10 a share in 1963 and paid $5.00—a dividend that has been in force for several years. At going prices (around $72 a share), the yield is about 7 per cent.

Lorillard, the third-ranking company, made $4.20 a share last year and paid more than $2. At going prices, the return is more than 5 per cent.

Reynolds Tobacco, the giant of them all, earned $3.10 a share and paid $1.65. In 1958, total sales were $1,146,000,000, and in 1963 they were through $1,600,000,000!

Recently I have been deluged with letters from readers of this column asking if they should not sell their tobacco stocks. That is my reason for writing this article.

Just now, in my opinion, the tobacco stocks are in the same unpopular category as were the steel stocks three years ago when orders from Washington, D. C. warned the big-steel enterprises, headed by U. S. Steel, that prices couldn't be raised.

As a result, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, and half a dozen other steel equities went into a price tailspin. Most of them have since recovered sharply in price, and thousands of former steel common-stock owners have lived to regret their hasty unnecessary action.

For investors wanting a good yield, I think the best tobacco equities are a purchase.

The old friend is William Shakespeare, born 400 years ago April 23. Guthrie came here as the first speaker in a program for the quadracentennial planned by the UCLA Extension Division, one of many such celebrations in all parts of the world.

Before taking off for other lectures at Berkeley and the Citadel in South Carolina, the famed director of the classics was asked what he thought of this year's to-do for the Bard.

"Oh, I think he'll survive," he replied. "It is a sign of greatness in such figures as Shakespeare and Verdi that they can survive any amount of mauling over the years."

He conceded that the celebration might even do Shakespeare some good, so long as the plays are accepted for their entertainment value and not as literature. He is appalled at how the young are exposed to Shakespeare.

"They should not be allowed to experience him too early," he observed. "High school is all right. But it is better for students not to be exposed at all than to be taught Shakespeare by a dull teacher."

Guthrie was also dubious about movies as a medium for appreciating Shakespeare.

"I thought Larry's (Olivier) 'Henry V' was well done, though more cinematic than Shakespeare," he observed. "But his 'Hamlet' was nonsense. It was ridiculous to say that this is a story of a man who could not make up his mind and then show a kind of Nazi guardsman elbowing everybody aside.

"As for Orson Welles' 'Macbeth,' it was rather a horror, but as with much of Welles' work, a horror with a touch of genius."

Aside from his lectures, Guthrie's contribution to the 1564-1964 celebration will be a staging of "Henry V" at the Tyrone Guthrie Playhouse in Minneapolis.

Guthrie, who rose to fame with his vigorous direction in the Old Vic, the Sadler's Wells and the New York theater, founded the Minneapolis theater last year after despairing of the stultifying economics of Broadway.

School Unit Plans World's Fair Trip

At a recent meeting of the Dental Aid Revolving Fund committee, Kingston Schools Consolidated, the group made plans to sponsor a bus trip to the New York World's Fair on Saturday, May 23, which will be observed as Ulster County Day.

A bus will leave the rear of the George Washington School at 8 a. m. The cost of the ticket will include entrance to the Fair Grounds. It was noted that reservations must be made on or before Feb. 26 with the secretary, Mrs. George Ballou, 202 West Chestnut Street or Miss June E. THE TOBACCO CONTROVERSY

The tobacco industry is presenly beset by negative forces growing out of the constroversy over the ills of smoking. As a result, all of the best cigarette stocks are selling low.

The big companies are expanding their advertising in the attempt to allay disquieting news. And they are working overtime in bringing out new brands—filter and mentholated — to neutralize the public concern about smoking.

It is my opinion that this is only a public passing fancy. Millions of Americans are creatures of habit and the temporary storm against smoking will soon pass over.

I asked a brilliant editor, age about 50, who is a 'chain smoker,' if she were going to give up cigarette smoking. 'Of course not,' she quickly replied, and then she continued, 'bad eating, excessive drinking, and bad morals kill 100 people every year compared with the few who may die from smoking.'

She quoted a long list of examples that she had gathered over a period of time to prove her point.

Kids 15, 16, 17 often think it is smart to smoke. Here in New York City I am amazed in my walks through the streets to see the small bunches of adolescents hanging around sheltered places who are smoking cigarettes.

The population of the United States is now about 190,000,000. In 1970, it will be 215,000,000. In six years there will be 25,000,000 additional potential smokers and the temporary sag in the tobacco business will be over.

American Tobacco, the second-largest cigarette maker, with yearly sales of over one billion dollars, is selling to yield almost 6 per cent. In 1963, it earned $2.45 a share and paid $1.50 in dividends.

Liggett and Myers, the fourth-largest company, earned $6.10 a share in 1963 and paid $5.00—a dividend that has been in force for several years. At going prices (around $72 a share), the yield is about 7 per cent.

Lorillard, the third-ranking company, made $4.20 a share last year and paid more than $2. At going prices, the return is more than 5 per cent.

Reynolds Tobacco, the giant of them all, earned $3.10 a share and paid $1.65. In 1958, total sales were $1,146,000,000, and in 1963 they were through $1,600,000,000!

Recently I have been deluged with letters from readers of this column asking if they should not sell their tobacco stocks. That is my reason for writing this article.

Just now, in my opinion, the tobacco stocks are in the same unpopular category as were the steel stocks three years ago when orders from Washington, D. C. warned the big-steel enterprises, headed by U. S. Steel, that prices couldn't be raised.

As a result, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, and half a dozen other steel equities went into a price tailspin. Most of them have since recovered sharply in price, and thousands of former steel common-stock owners have lived to regret their hasty unnecessary action.

For investors wanting a good yield, I think the best tobacco equities are a purchase.

SHARING PRIZE WITH OTHERS

Q: My boy friend and I went to a club dance Saturday night. There were three other couples in our party and we sat at a table together. During the evening there was a dance contest and my boy friend and I won it. The prize was a bottle of imported wine which I took home with me. Will you please tell me if this was the right thing to do or should we have opened it at the dance and shared it with the others at our table. We are being criticized for not having done so.

A: It would of course have been a very generous gesture to open the bottle of wine and shared it with the others at your table, but it was not at all necessary to do so and your friends should not have expected it. The prize was yours to keep and take home with you if you chose to do so. When you do open the bottle, however, it would be no more then right to invite the boy who was your dancing partner to your house to have some of the wine which he helped to win.

A Bride's Thank-You Notes

Q: When writing thank-you notes for wedding presents is it necessary to mention the actual gift, or could one merely say, "Thank you for the lovely gift."

A: "Thank you for the lovely gift" is too vague and implies that the bride has not taken the trouble to keep a record of who sent which gift. To show proper appreciation, she must mention the present each one sent, such as, "Thank you for the lovely lamp," or "the beautiful silver tray," etc.

When to Start Eating

Q: I have been told that when dining in a private house, guests are supposed to wait for the hostess to pick up her fork as a signal that the meal is to begin, before starting to eat. Is this true?

A: There is no such rule. Guests may properly begin to eat as soon as two or three others at table have been served.

The Mature Parent

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Shun Role of Busybody

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: My brother, 16, is getting into trouble with a married girl. Her husband has twice told my parents to keep him away from her, but I know he still sees her. My boy friend and I saw them smooching in a movie the other night. When I told my parents this, they said I had been mistaken. As I am only 19, my brother won't listen to me when I try to tell him that this girl is no good.

ANSWER: Child, your brother's behavior is your parent's business. That they are not attending to it doesn't make it yours.

Do you know what a busybody is?

A busybody is the child — usually the eldest child—of people who have been unable to protect themselves and their families against disasters. In his childhood, the busybody has therefore experienced many family disasters. As a result of them, he has lost trust in his parent's ability to look after themselves and their children.

Without knowing he's doing it, he takes over their responsibility for his family's safety. As I suspect you do, he lives in constant apprehension of new family disasters, and tattles, fights, pleads for some action that may avert them.

But he is never credited with his protective intention. By trying to arouse your parents to action on your brother's infatuation, you have only aroused their irritation and his anger. Your family has made it clear that it cannot use your concern. Register this. Take it in. And give up. Otherwise, you may turn yourself into that chronically anxious, unpopular, overhelpful creature we call a "busybody."

It is just possible that your parents will wake to their responsibility to your brother if you withdraw from this problem and stop trying to shield them against its possibly nasty consequences.

You are 19. That is old enough to start to recognize the point at which we can do no more for other people. When we can recognize this point, we lose our busybody terror of troubles because we know that we have done all that is possible to avert them.

We the Women

BY RUTH MILLETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The professor of psychology was talking to a group of businessmen: "While there can be great satisfaction derived from increasing competence in golf or bowling or other physical activities with which leisure time can be filled, man's most distinctive attribute is the possession of a human head, and perhaps his greatest satisfactions can come from the creative and satisfying use of that head."

Though the professor's words were aimed at men, they are just as apt for women.

Busy young homemakers don't have to worry about filling much leisure time. But there are many years for the average woman, once her children are grown, that provide a great deal of leisure time that is either satisfying or suffocating — depending on how she uses it.

If she fills her days with bridge, aimless shopping trips, gossip sessions on the phone and an endless round of club meetings, she is almost sure to be bored a good part of the time.

But if she regards her new leisure as a wonderful gift instead of empty time to be filled, she can enjoy every hour of it.

Some middle-aged housewives wisely spend the gift of leisure by putting their minds to work on a new or resumed career. Others look for gaps in their education and begin to fill the gaps, by home study or by going back to classes.

Others decide to use their leisure by taking on worthwhile volunteer jobs, not confusing them with the kind of busy work so often offered to women.

It is the aimless killing of time instead of the intelligent use of it that can make a woman's leisure seem more of a burden than a gift.

Any leisure time activity that makes a woman use her brain will keep her from being bored, or from boring others.

Otherwise, you may turn yourself into that chronically anxious, unpopular, overhelpful creature we call a "busybody."

It is just possible that your parents will wake to their responsibility to your brother if you withdraw from this problem and stop trying to shield them against its possibly nasty consequences.

You are 19. That is old enough to start to recognize the point at which we can do no more for other people. When we can recognize this point, we lose our busybody terror of troubles because we know that we have done all that is possible to avert them.

We the Women

BY RUTH MILLETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The professor of psychology was talking to a group of businessmen: "While there can be great satisfaction derived from increasing competence in golf or bowling or other physical activities with which leisure time can be filled, man's most distinctive attribute is the possession of a human head, and perhaps his greatest satisfactions can come from the creative and satisfying use of that head."

Though the professor's words were aimed at men, they are just as apt for women.

Busy young homemakers don't have to worry about filling much leisure time. But there are many years for the average woman, once her children are grown, that provide a great deal of leisure time that is either satisfying or suffocating — depending on how she uses it.

If she fills her days with bridge, aimless shopping trips, gossip sessions on the phone and an endless round of club meetings, she is almost sure to be bored a good part of the time.

But if she regards her new leisure as a wonderful gift instead of empty time to be filled, she can enjoy every hour of it.

Some middle-aged housewives wisely spend the gift of leisure by putting their minds to work on a new or resumed career. Others look for gaps in their education and begin to fill the gaps, by home study or by going back to classes.

Others decide to use their leisure by taking on worthwhile volunteer jobs, not confusing them with the kind of busy work so often offered to women.

It is the aimless killing of time instead of the intelligent use of it that can make a woman's leisure seem more of a burden than a gift.

Any leisure time activity that makes a woman use her brain will keep her from being bored, or from boring others.

Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society Sets Date for Annual Meeting; February 27

The Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society will hold its annual meeting, this year to be combined with a dinner, on Thursday, February 27 at 7:30 p. m., at the Hellenic Center, Park Avenue, Poughkeepsie, according to Mrs. Sarkis Isbirian, chairman of arrangements for the meeting.

Musical entertainment for the event will be provided by Jonathan Kline, eleven-year old violinist from Hudson, N. Y., who was selected by Claude Monteux, conductor and musical director of the Philharmonic, and commended by the conductor as a "very capable violinist".

According to Mrs. Isbirian, this Annual Meeting is open to all members of the Philharmonic Society. "This includes members of the councils in Poughkeepsie, Kingston and Newburgh," she said. "It also includes, of course, all of our subscribers to the regular series concerts given in those three cities." Reservations must be made by February 24th she added. They can be made by writing to the Philharmonic Society, Box 5, Poughkeepsie.

A cocktail hour at 6:30 will precede the buffet dinner. There will be a brief business session, during which officers of the Society will be elected.

Mendelssohn Work Will Be Performed Here On April 26

The Ulster County Choral Society, Inc., will present Felix Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," in the Community Theater on April 26.

This work will be sung in its entirety, with full orchestra and professional soloists.

The orchestra will be the Hudson Valley Philharmonic.

The Ulster County Choral Society is a mixed chorus of 100 voices under the direction of Percy W. Gazlay II. The society is amateur, non-profit, non-sectarian. The sole aim of the organization is to bring great choral music to the community.

"Elijah" is a deeply religious work, dramatizing the Old Testament story of the great Hebrew Prophet; his contest with the priests of the pagan god Baal, his intercession with the Almighty to end the great drought and famine; the people's joy as the rains come; the moving story of the resurrection of the widow's son, and Elijah's entrance to heaven.

Many of the inspiring choruses and solos are familiar since they have been sung in churches and temples throughout the Western World as part of regular Sabbath services for almost a century.

Stone Ridge Unit

The Stone Ridge Home Demonstration Unit will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. K. Bell, Stone Ridge.

Following the business session there will be an Introduction to Making Sewing Screens. The course will be given by Mrs. Bell. Anyone interested in attending may get in touch with Mrs. Bell on or before Feb. 19.

Moisture in the home is discussed in the following article by Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent:

In houses where the relative humidity is low, furniture joints often dry out and come unglued; paintings, books, carpets, and other home furnishings may be dried out and damaged. Many homes need more moisture in the air during the cold winter months than they have.

If the air in your house is exceedingly dry, you and your family may be more susceptible to colds and other respiratory infections. Your hair and skin may feel dry. For your own comfort, you may find you require a room temperature 4 to 6 degrees F. higher than would be necessary if there were sufficient moisture in the air.

In this part of the United States heating and ventilating engineers usually recommend 30 to 40 per cent relative humidity in winter. This means that at any given time the air in the house should contain 35-40 per cent of the total moisture it can hold.

Cooking, bathing, and laundering help add moisture to the air, but the combination of these factors may not keep a house adequately humidified in cold weather.

With some new houses that have been well insulated and have vapor barriers, weatherstripping, storm windows and doors, all of which prevent the escape of moisture from the house, dryness may not be a problem.

But for other homes humidity units may be needed to achieve a desirable amount of relative humidity. In such cases, if the furnace is of the forced warm air type, a unit can be installed in the system. With a steam or a hot water heating system an appliance-type humidifier, either portable or console, may be used. Portable units vary in size and capacity. It is important to select units that will provide the necessary moisture for the space involved.

Eggs — Present and Future

As early as the 8th Century B.C. decorated eggs were used to symbolize spring. Eggs are a very appropriate symbol of spring as they are in largest supply during this season, says Louise M. Kakargo, assistant home demonstration agent.

Eggs may cost less in 1964 than in 1963 because the supply of eggs is expected to be larger this year than last year. The larger supply will result from more laying hens on farms and an increase over last year in the rate at which hens lay the eggs.

When the supply of eggs seasonally increases during the spring, retail prices normally decline. Prices tend to rise during the late summer and are usually highest in the early fall. Prices decline again in the late fall.

Eggs are available in most markets in large or medium sizes and sometimes in small or pullet sizes. There is usually a difference in price per dozen between sizes. There are two guides to use in deciding which egg size will give you the most egg for your money.

From January to July, the season when large eggs are relatively more plentiful than medium eggs, large eggs, on the averge, sell for less per pound than medium-sized eggs. Of course, the price of large eggs will be slightly more per dozen than the medium-sized eggs. During late summer and fall, August through November, when medium eggs normally are more abundant than large eggs, consumers may find the medium and small-size eggs a more economical buy on a weight basis.

If a consumer is in doubt about which size gives the most egg for the money at a given time, here is a simple rule of thumb to follow at current prices for eggs.

If there is less than 7 or 8 cents difference in price per dozen between two sizes of eggs, the larger size is the better buy per pound. If there is a larger than 7 or 8 cent difference in price per dozen, the smaller size is the better buy.

Changing the form in which eggs are marketed has several advantages. Because eggs are perishable, when there is a surplus supply, freezing, drying, or refrigerating the egg contents helps to preserve the egg until it can be used. This helps to even out the fluctuations in the supply of eggs. Removing the egg from its shell reduces its bulk and weight and makes it less expensive to transport and store than in-shell. Eggs that are not in their shells are less fragile, thus, easier to handle than in-shell eggs.

In adition to fresh eggs, institutions, commercial bakeries, and food processing plants may use the eggs in the processed forms listed below. Processed eggs are normally sold in bulk lots and are not readily available to household consumers.

Liquid-bulk eggs are the egg contents minus the shell. They are available as liquid whole eggs, liquid yolks, and liquid whites.

Egg solids are dried eggs. They come in three basic forms: whole egg solids, egg white solids, and egg yolk solids. The consumer will find powdered or dried eggs listed as ingredients in some prepared cake mixes.

Frozen eggs are frozen, homogenized whole eggs, yolks, or whites.

Today processing does not merely mean preserving a product in some fashion. It can mean making another product. The Department of Poultry Husbandry of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University is developing and testing new egg products.

Among these products are frozen French toast, frozen Western egg sandwich fillings (portion sized slices ready for frying and serving), egg roll, (four large eggs broken out of their shells into a plastic tube and then hard cooked), and Tren (apple juice blended with whole egg). Only the French toast is available in some regional markets now, but the other products may be in the near future.

Koutzen Composition Will Be Featured In Vassar Concert

Miss Sarah Gibson Blanding, president of Vassar College, will be honored by the first presentation of Boris Koutzen's newest work, "Poem for Violin Solo and String Quartet", at a recital given by the composer and the Hudson Valley Philharmonic String Quartet on Wednesday. The concert is scheduled for 8:30 p. m. in Skinner Recital Hall, Vassar College, and is open to the public.

The members of the quartet, Mrs. Alice Smiley and Murray Gould, violins, Gary VanOsdale, viola, and Sterling Hunkins, 'cello, will be assisted by Donald M. Pearson at the harpsichord. Mr. Hunkins and the quartet will play Johann Sebastian Bach's "Concerto for Violin in E major (BWV 1042)" and Franz Schubert's "Rondo for Violin and String Quartet (D.438)". The soloist will play Bach's "Partita No. 3 in E major (BWV 1006) for Violin alone".

The program will close with Mr. Koutzen's work, which was composed in 1963 and is dedicated to Miss Blanding. She will retire next July as Vassar's president. Those who wish to meet the artists after the recital are cordially invited to attend an informal reception in Thekla Hall.

Mr. Koutzen, who is Associate Professor of Music at Vassar, is the conductor of the Vassar Orchestra and also of the Chappaqua Chamber Orchestra. After leaving a promising career in his native Russia, Mr. Koutzen came to this country and joined the Philadelphia Orchestra. Two years later he became head of the violin department of the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music, where he received the Doctor of Music degree in 1940. He joined the NBC Symphony Orchestra when it was formed in 1937 and continued in it for eight years.

Mr. Koutzen has received several awards for his compositions, which have been played by noted orchestras and ensembles.

Stone Ridge Unit

The Stone Ridge Home Demonstration Unit will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. K. Bell, Stone Ridge.

Following the business session there will be an Introduction to Making Sewing Screens. The course will be given by Mrs. Bell. Anyone interested in attending may get in touch with Mrs. Bell on or before Feb. 19.

Moisture in the home is discussed in the following article by Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent:

In houses where the relative humidity is low, furniture joints often dry out and come unglued; paintings, books, carpets, and other home furnishings may be dried out and damaged. Many homes need more moisture in the air during the cold winter months than they have.

If the air in your house is exceedingly dry, you and your family may be more susceptible to colds and other respiratory infections. Your hair and skin may feel dry. For your own comfort, you may find you require a room temperature 4 to 6 degrees F. higher than would be necessary if there were sufficient moisture in the air.

In this part of the United States heating and ventilating engineers usually recommend 30 to 40 per cent relative humidity in winter. This means that at any given time the air in the house should contain 35-40 per cent of the total moisture it can hold.

Cooking, bathing, and laundering help add moisture to the air, but the combination of these factors may not keep a house adequately humidified in cold weather.

With some new houses that have been well insulated and have vapor barriers, weather-stripping, storm windows and doors, all of which prevent the escape of moisture from the house, dryness may not be a problem.

But for other homes humidity units may be needed to achieve a desirable amount of relative humidity. In such cases, if the furnace is of the forced warm air type, a unit can be installed in the system. With a steam or a hot water heating system an appliance-type humidifier, either portable or console, may be used. Portable units vary in size and capacity. It is important to select units that will provide the necessary moisture for the space involved.

Eggs — Present and Future

As early as the 8th Century B.C. decorated eggs were used to symbolize spring. Eggs are a very appropriate symbol of spring as they are in largest supply during this season, says Louise M. Kakargo, assistant home demonstration agent.

Eggs may cost less in 1964 than in 1963 because the supply of eggs is expected to be larger this year than last year. The larger supply will result from more laying hens on farms and an increase over last year in the rate at which hens lay the eggs.

When the supply of eggs seasonally increases during the spring, retail prices normally decline. Prices tend to rise during the late summer and are usually highest in the early fall. Prices decline again in the late fall.

Eggs are available in most markets in large or medium sizes and sometimes in small or pullet sizes. There is usually a difference in price per dozen between sizes. There are two guides to use in deciding which egg size will give you the most egg for your money.

From January to July, the season when large eggs are relatively more plentiful than medium eggs, large eggs, on the averge, sell for less per pound than medium-sized eggs. Of course, the price of large eggs will be slightly more per dozen than the medium-sized eggs. During late summer and fall, August through November, when medium eggs normally are more abundant than large eggs, consumers may find the medium and small-size eggs a more economical buy on a weight basis.

If a consumer is in doubt about which size gives the most egg for the money at a given time, here is a simple rule of thumb to follow at current prices for eggs.

If there is less than 7 or 8 cents difference in price per dozen between two sizes of eggs, the larger size is the better buy per pound. If there is a larger than 7 or 8 cent difference in price per dozen, the smaller size is the better buy.

Changing the form in which eggs are marketed has several advantages. Because eggs are perishable, when there is a surplus supply, freezing, drying, or refrigerating the egg contents helps to preserve the egg until it can be used. This helps to even out the fluctuations in the supply of eggs. Removing the egg from its shell reduces its bulk and weight and makes it less expensive to transport and store than in-shell. Eggs that are not in their shells are less fragile, thus, easier to handle than in-shell eggs.

In adition to fresh eggs, institutions, commercial bakeries, and food processing plants may use the eggs in the processed forms listed below. Processed eggs are normally sold in bulk lots and are not readily available to household consumers.

Liquid-bulk eggs are the egg contents minus the shell. They are available as liquid whole eggs, liquid yolks, and liquid whites.

Egg solids are dried eggs. They come in three basic forms: whole egg solids, egg white solids, and egg yolk solids. The consumer will find powdered or dried eggs listed as ingredients in some prepared cake mixes.

Frozen eggs are frozen, homogenized whole eggs, yolks, or whites.

Today processing does not merely mean preserving a product in some fashion. It can mean making another product. The Department of Poultry Husbandry of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University is developing and testing new egg products.

Among these products are frozen French toast, frozen Western egg sandwich fillings (portion sized slices ready for frying and serving), egg roll, (four large eggs broken out of their shells into a plastic tube and then hard cooked), and Tren (apple juice blended with whole egg). Only the French toast is available in some regional markets now, but the other products may be in the near future.

Koutzen Composition Will Be Featured In Vassar Concert

Miss Sarah Gibson Blanding, president of Vassar College, will be honored by the first presentation of Boris Koutzen's newest work, "Poem for Violin Solo and String Quartet", at a recital given by the composer and the Hudson Valley Philharmonic String Quartet on Wednesday. The concert is scheduled for 8:30 p. m. in Skinner Recital Hall, Vassar College, and is open to the public.

The members of the quartet, Mrs. Alice Smiley and Murray Gould, violins, Gary VanOsdale, viola, and Sterling Hunkins, 'cello, will be assisted by Donald M. Pearson at the harpsichord. Mr. Hunkins and the quartet will play Johann Sebastian Bach's "Concerto for Violin in E major (BWV 1042)" and Franz Schubert's "Rondo for Violin and String Quartet (D.438)". The soloist will play Bach's "Partita No. 3 in E major (BWV 1006) for Violin alone".

The program will close with Mr. Koutzen's work, which was composed in 1963 and is dedicated to Miss Blanding. She will retire next July as Vassar's president. Those who wish to meet the artists after the recital are cordially invited to attend an informal reception in Thekla Hall.

Mr. Koutzen, who is Associate Professor of Music at Vassar, is the conductor of the Vassar Orchestra and also of the Chappaqua Chamber Orchestra. After leaving a promising career in his native Russia, Mr. Koutzen came to this country and joined the Philadelphia Orchestra. Two years later he became head of the violin department of the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music, where he received the Doctor of Music degree in 1940. He joined the NBC Symphony Orchestra when it was formed in 1937 and continued in it for eight years.

Mr. Koutzen has received several awards for his compositions, which have been played by noted orchestras and ensembles.

DAR Releases Reminder of U. S. History Month

Mrs. William D. Brinnier, public relations chairman, Saugerties Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, today issues another in the series of reminders for American History Month, sponsored by the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

Most Americans and especially any child knows Daniel Boone was America's greatest frontier scout who left his home in North Carolina in 1769 to explore the Western wilderness. But did you know he suffered every personal agony imaginable?

Indians captured one of his daughters; two of his sons were killed; a traveling companion was shot and scalped; a second companion was eaten by wolves; his brother was shot and scalped before his eyes.

Captured by Indians, Daniel Boone was taken to Detroit. While there he learned that the Inians planned to attack Boonesborough. He escaped, walked 160 miles to the fort in four days with only one meal enroute. When he appeared before the garrison, he looked like a ghost. But his warning came in time. The settlers made frantic eforts to prepare. The Indians gave up when they learned that he was there. They knew that he would never surrender.

This was the type of man that molded our country into what it is today.

DAR Releases Reminder of U. S. History Month

Mrs. William D. Brinnier, public relations chairman, Saugerties Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, today issues another in the series of reminders for American History Month, sponsored by the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

Most Americans and especially any child knows Daniel Boone was America's greatest frontier scout who left his home in North Carolina in 1769 to explore the Western wilderness. But did you know he suffered every personal agony imaginable?

Indians captured one of his daughters; two of his sons were killed; a traveling companion was shot and scalped; a second companion was eaten by wolves; his brother was shot and scalped before his eyes.

Captured by Indians, Daniel Boone was taken to Detroit. While there he learned that the Inians planned to attack Boonesborough. He escaped, walked 160 miles to the fort in four days with only one meal enroute. When he appeared before the garrison, he looked like a ghost. But his warning came in time. The settlers made frantic eforts to prepare. The Indians gave up when they learned that he was there. They knew that he would never surrender.

This was the type of man that molded our country into what it is today.

4 O'clock Game

KHS Cagers to Play At Arlington Tuesday

Kingston High cagers will make an unusual matinee appearance Tuesday when they oppose Arlington at new AHS gym in Freedom Plains. Game time is 4 p. m. with the varsity clubs playing first.

Arlington has a 6-2 record in the DCSL, having lost twice to Beacon. The Admirals, coached by Frank King, won a 61-60 decision at the Field House several weeks ago.

Coach John Gilligan's club is 7-7 overall and has a 6-4 mark in DUSO activity. If they split two of their final four games, they will finish no worse than .500 for the season.

After Tuesday's tilt, the Maroon players will close their home season Friday against Newburgh and will play at Lourdes and Port Jervis the last two games.

There are two DUSO games on the Tuesday night slate. They are Monticello at Poughkeepsie and Liberty at Newburgh. In other non-league action. Pine Plains plays at Roosevelt and Lourdes at Rhinebeck.

The Monticello at Poughkeepsie battle should be a high scoring affair. Both teams have to win in order to remain in the flag chase.

Newburgh, beaten by Poughkeepsie last week, should dispose of hustling Liberty, which has speed but little in the way of height.

New Paltz JVs Halt Rally to Earn 65-41 Win

Though they rallied from a nine-point deficit at halftime, Ulster County Community College players barely missed upsetting the New Paltz Jayvees, 65-64, in a thriller Saturday at the New Patz Central school gym.

Coach Al Miller's team had a 33-24 lead at the interim and seemed headed for a second straight easy win over the Senators.

However, coach Al DiBernardo's chargers led on several occasions during the second half only to lose in the late stages.

Jack Lewis continued his superlative play for the Senators with 17 points and a bushelful of rebounds.

Poor foul shooting cost the visitors in this one. While they converted only 10 for 23, New Paltz made 12 free throws in 21 attempts.

The Senators have a 3-7 record in their first season on the hardwood. They will close Saturday night by hosting Delhi.

Romano Captures Ice Skating Title

Joe Romano beat defending champion Joe Scott in a tight finish to win the 880 yard skating championship Saturday at Strubel's Pond.

Drew Pinkham, who led for seven of the eight laps in the feature race, fell on the final turn. Romano came with a rush on the inside and Scott just missed overtaking the winner in a close finish.

In the 440 yard semi-final event, Pinkham led by a wide margin the entire distance to easily outskate Romano, who was second and Scott, a distant third.

In the 440 yard feature for boys under 17 years of age, Wayne Terwilliger was the winner over William Dugan and Jim Rapp.

Heat winners in this division were Art Mowle, Dugan and Terwilliger. Winners will receive trophies while second and third place finishers will be awarded medals.

4 O'clock Game

KHS Cagers to Play At Arlington Tuesday

Kingston High cagers will make an unusual matinee appearance Tuesday when they oppose Arlington at new AHS gym in Freedom Plains. Game time is 4 p. m. with the varsity clubs playing first.

Arlington has a 6-2 record in the DCSL, having lost twice to Beacon. The Admirals, coached by Frank King, won a 61-60 decision at the Field House several weeks ago.

Coach John Gilligan's club is 7-7 overall and has a 6-4 mark in DUSO activity. If they split two of their final four games, they will finish no worse than .500 for the season.

After Tuesday's tilt, the Maroon players will close their home season Friday against Newburgh and will play at Lourdes and Port Jervis the last two games.

There are two DUSO games on the Tuesday night slate. They are Monticello at Poughkeepsie and Liberty at Newburgh. In other non-league action. Pine Plains plays at Roosevelt and Lourdes at Rhinebeck.

The Monticello at Poughkeepsie battle should be a high scoring affair. Both teams have to win in order to remain in the flag chase.

Newburgh, beaten by Poughkeepsie last week, should dispose of hustling Liberty, which has speed but little in the way of height.

New Paltz JVs Halt Rally to Earn 65-41 Win

Though they rallied from a nine-point deficit at halftime, Ulster County Community College players barely missed upsetting the New Paltz Jayvees, 65-64, in a thriller Saturday at the New Patz Central school gym.

Coach Al Miller's team had a 33-24 lead at the interim and seemed headed for a second straight easy win over the Senators.

However, coach Al DiBernardo's chargers led on several occasions during the second half only to lose in the late stages.

Jack Lewis continued his superlative play for the Senators with 17 points and a bushelful of rebounds.

Poor foul shooting cost the visitors in this one. While they converted only 10 for 23, New Paltz made 12 free throws in 21 attempts.

The Senators have a 3-7 record in their first season on the hardwood. They will close Saturday night by hosting Delhi.

Welfare Average For Month Was 636,000 in 1963

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state social welfare commissioner says the number of New Yorkers on relief rose to a monthly average of 636,000 last year.

And the relief rolls will grow larger unless the unemployment problem is solved, Commissioner George K. Wyman said Saturday.

The Social Welfare Board and Department disclosed in their joint annual report that the monthly average of welfare receipients had increased 52,000 over the 1962 level.

Wyman said that unless "tremendous efforts" are made to find work for those whose jobs are eliminated by automation, welfare caseloads will rise. And, he said, "welfare costs will increase proportionately."

Goldwater Thinks He's Doing Good In Campaigning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, back from a week's campaigning in the West and a strategy huddle in Chicago, is optimistic about the progress he is making toward the Republican presidential nomination.

However, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York still thinks Goldwater was "reckless" and "irresponsible" when he advocated sending Marines to turn the water back on at the U.S. naval base in Gauntanamo, Cuba.

And Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania, describing the kind of candidate who he thought could beat President Johnson next November, didn't seem to have Goldwater in mind.

But Goldwater, fresh from a Chicago strategy session with his top political lieutenants Sunday, said a "great groundswell" of support is building for him.

The Arizona senator said he thinks he has 450 convention votes locked up and another 125 "practically sure." That's only 80 votes short of the number needed to get the nomination.

Goldwater picked up 12 delegates from Oklahoma and four from North Carolina over the weekend. Two other North Carolina delegates selected at GOP conventions did not state a preference for any candidate.

Goldwater also got an enthusiastic endorsement from the California young Republicans. Meeting in San Diego the GOP group voted 256½ to 33½ in favor of a resolution supporting his nomination.

The American Cancer Society is the voluntary health agency that gives the greatest research support to the problem of leukemia and lymphomas, which are cancers of the blood-forming tissues, it was reported today by Dr. Glenn H. Leak president of the society's New York Division.

The American Cancer Society is now investing more than $2 million in a broad national program of leukemia - related research. Four scientists at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, are among 61 researchers participating in the Society's program of leukemia research.

They are: Dr. Julian L. Ambrus, Dr. Elias Cohen, Dr. Morton L. Levine, and Dr. Avery Sandberg. Their American Cancer Society grants total $134,385. Dr. Levine also receives a lifetime grant from the American Cancer Society.

Gerald Cummins of Esopus, operator of the vehicle owned by Anthony S. Megaree, Esopus, was treated at Kingston Hospital for lacerations of the lower lip.

Boy, 3, Drowns In Dutchess Near Trailer Home

A 3-year-old Dutchess County boy drowned Saturday after he fell through thin ice at the edge of Wappingers Creek near his parents trailer home in Wappingers Falls Trailer Park, near New Hackensack.

Fishkill State Police said the victim was Keith W. Rexhouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beale.

Authorities said the boy apparently was playing on thin ice when he fell through into the icy waters. His cries were heard by his brother, Gregory, 5, and Edmin Martin, 6, a playmate, who were in a wooded area nearby.

The two boys ran to the trailer park for help.

Fishkill troopers and the victim's stepfather, Richard Beale, took a boat into the creek to search for the missing boy, whose body was found later caught on branches of a submerged tree in three feet of water. The boy had been carried downstream about 150 feet from the spot where he plnnged through the ice.

Dr. Chester H. Golding, Dutchess County medical examiner, pronounced the child dead, shortly after 1 p. m., on Saturday. Efforts to revive the boy were futile.

Defense Has Fear Sinatra May Go On Europe Trip

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Cross-examination of Frank Sinatra Jr. in the young singer's kidnaping case was scheduled to resume today amid defense fears that the alleged victim might be released to go to Europe.

The prosecutor, Asst. U.S. Atty. Thomas R. Sheridan, told Federal Judge William G. East Friday that young Sinatra has contractual arrangements overseas which must be fulfilled in the next few days.

Attorneys Gladys Towles Root, Morris Lavine, and Charles L. Crouch Jr., counsel for the defendants John R. Irwin, 42; Clyde Amsler, 23; and Barry Keenan, 23, protested they are far from finished with Sinatra. They claim Sinatra planned the kidnap as a publicity hoax.

But Judge East ordered the defense to show today the need to keep the 20-year-old son of famed singer Frank Sinatra present.

Irwin, Amsler and Keenan are charged with kidnaping and holding Sinatra for $240,000 ransom last Dec. 8. The elder Sinatra paid the sum for his son's safe return Dec. 11.

Defense Has Fear Sinatra May Go On Europe Trip

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Cross-examination of Frank Sinatra Jr. in the young singer's kidnaping case was scheduled to resume today amid defense fears that the alleged victim might be released to go to Europe.

The prosecutor, Asst. U.S. Atty. Thomas R. Sheridan, told Federal Judge William G. East Friday that young Sinatra has contractual arrangements overseas which must be fulfilled in the next few days.

Attorneys Gladys Towles Root, Morris Lavine, and Charles L. Crouch Jr., counsel for the defendants John R. Irwin, 42; Clyde Amsler, 23; and Barry Keenan, 23, protested they are far from finished with Sinatra. They claim Sinatra planned the kidnap as a publicity hoax.

But Judge East ordered the defense to show today the need to keep the 20-year-old son of famed singer Frank Sinatra present.

Irwin, Amsler and Keenan are charged with kidnaping and holding Sinatra for $240,000 ransom last Dec. 8. The elder Sinatra paid the sum for his son's safe return Dec. 11.
